Political Leadership in an Era of Decolonisation Malcolm Murfett, 2023-11-10 What is leadership and why is it so important In what ways does it look very different in different contexts and in what ways does it look the same Malcolm Murfett brings together a range of emerging and established scholars to examine these questions in light of some of the mid twentieth century s most intriguing national leaders In a series of striking biographical chapters lessons are drawn from the apartheid era in South Africa Lee s remarkable socio economic transformation of Singapore Castro s revolutionary overhauling of Cuba and the playing out of Bandaranaike s populist agenda in Sri Lanka The book illuminates what Brezhnev and Nixon were looking for in the Cold War and what happened when the people turned against Nyerere in Tanzania the Shah in Iran and Ceau escu in Romania These case studies address what leadership meant for the individuals whose record in power is being examined These are not idealised portraits of how to do leadership but warts and all portrayals of exceptional individuals who scrabbled their way to the top and stayed there for several years during a period of great change Business schools have long studied the theoretical axioms of corporate leadership What this book does however is to move beyond the theory into the practical realm of politics and statecraft This is a fascinating book on leadership that will be of interest for students researchers and practitioners studying leadership in business and politics as well as for students of global history decolonisation and the Cold War

national security strategy National Security Entrepreneurs and the Making of American Foreign Policy Vincent Boucher, Charles-Philippe David, Karine Prémont, 2020-11-12 Since the advent of the contemporary US national security apparatus in 1947 entrepreneurial public officials have tried to reorient the course of the nation's foreign policy. Acting inside the National Security Council system, some principals and high ranking officials have worked tirelessly to generate policy change and innovation on the issues they care about. These entrepreneurs attempt to set the foreign policy agenda, frame policy problems and solutions, and orient the decision making process to convince the president and other decision makers to choose the course they advocate. In National Security Entrepreneurs and the Making of American Foreign Policy, Vincent Boucher, Charles-Philippe David, and Karine Prémont develop a new concept to study entrepreneurial behaviour among foreign policy advisers and offer the first comprehensive framework of analysis to answer this crucial question: why do some entrepreneurs succeed in guaranteeing the adoption of novel policies while others fail? They explore case studies of attempts to reorient US foreign policy, waged by National Security Council entrepreneurs, examining the key factors enabling success and the main forces preventing the adoption of a preferred option: the entrepreneur's profile, presidential leadership, major players involved in the policy formulation and decision making processes, the national political context, and the presence or absence of significant opportunities. By carefully analyzing significant diplomatic and military decisions of the Johnson, Nixon, Reagan, and Clinton administrations, and offering a preliminary account of contemporary national security entrepreneurship under presidents George W. Bush, Barack Obama, and Donald Trump, this book makes the case for an agent-based explanation of foreign policy change and continuity.

Reviewing the Cold War Odd Arne Westad, 2013-10-14 Since the cold war ended, it has become an international field of study with new material from China, the former Soviet Union, and Europe. This volume takes stock of where these new materials have taken us in our understanding of what the cold war was about and how we should study it.

US Arms Policies Towards the Shah's Iran Stephen McGlinchey, 2014-06-05 This book reconstructs and explains the arms relationship that successive US administrations developed with the Shah of Iran between 1950 and 1979. This relationship has generally been neglected in the extant literature, leading to a series of omissions and distortions in the historical record. By detailing how and why Iran transitioned from a primitive military aid recipient in the 1950s to America's primary military credit customer in the late 1960s and 1970s, this book provides a detailed and original contribution to the understanding of a key Cold War episode in US foreign policy. By drawing on extensive declassified documents from more than 10 archives, the investigation demonstrates not only the importance of the arms relationship but also how it reflected and contributed to the wider evolution of US-Iranian relations from a position of Iranian client state dependency to a situation where the US became heavily leveraged to the Shah for protection of the Gulf and beyond, until the policy met its disastrous end in 1979 as an antithetical regime took power in Iran. This book will be of interest to students and scholars of Middle East studies, US Foreign Policy, and Security studies, and for those seeking better foundations for which to gain an understanding of U S foreign policy in the final decade of the Cold War and beyond
