Protective Behaviour:

Teaching Protective Behaviours to Young Children Carolyn Gelenter, Nadine Prescott, Belinda Riley, 2017-07-05 This programme aims to provide children aged 4-7 years with awareness and strategies for keeping safe. Although it may be difficult to accept, children and young people from any community, including those with disabilities, can be put at risk of harm, abused or hurt regardless of their age, gender, religion or ethnicity. All children have the right to be safeguarded from abuse or neglect so they have the opportunity to reach their potential and be successful adults. Protective behaviours teaches children to develop an awareness of personal safety, helps them to identify and express their feelings, make choices and solve problems. First Steps to Safety has taken the core protective behaviour principles and created a teaching framework with overarching aims, supporting lesson plans, resources and activities in a 10-week programme that can be picked up and used by anyone in school wanting to empower children and young people of any age and any capability to develop personal safety. The information and strategies provided to children are generic and applicable across a range of situations that may arise, for example bullying, internet safety, being harmed, feeling sad or feeling unsafe. Sessions include my body parts, showing my feelings, my body thoughts and feelings, all go together, feeling safe, behaviour choices to empower children to feel safe and know they have a right to feel safe, to give children the confidence and ability to assertively manage their own safety, to children the skills to take responsibility for their own bodies, thoughts, feelings and behaviour, to enable children with a range of communication abilities to ask for help, for children to have awareness of their body thoughts, feelings and behaviour, have a vocabulary to express how their thoughts and feelings affect their bodies, know the early warning signs for feeling unsafe, know they can make different behaviour choices based on feelings and know who good people are to go to for help and how to ask for help.

Psychology of Behaviour Restrictions and Public Compliance in the Pandemic

Barrie Gunter, 2022-07-12 This volume examines the topic of compliance with COVID 19 restrictions and the non pharmaceutical measures taken by governments in attempts to bring the pandemic under control. Discovery that COVID 19 was largely transmitted through the air meant that public health strategies were needed to limit close physical contact between people. Epidemiological modelling offered initial interventions to tackle the rate of spread but to be effective these measures were dependent on widespread public adoption and compliance. This book examines the key theories and empirical approaches to behavioural change and compliance and reviews research on their relative effectiveness in driving public behaviour. Author Barrie Gunter considers four principal models used: nudge theory, social identity group processes theory, theory of planned behaviour and the capability opportunity motivation behaviour COM-B model. Gunter weighs the pros and cons of each, offers commentary on lessons that can be learned from their application during the pandemic and what they may have to offer in a triangulated approach, theoretically, methodologically and in terms of policy making. Examining not just the extent of compliance but also the psychological drivers of this behaviour over time, this is essential reading for students and researchers in psychology, public health and medical sciences and policy makers assessing government strategies, responses and performance.

Protecting Civilians in War Miriam Bradley, 2016-03-03 Since the complex emergencies of the 1990s humanitarian agencies have placed increasing emphasis on the protection of civilians during armed conflict In spite of this there is a consensus among humanitarians that outcomes are falling short of intentions and that the increased emphasis on protection by humanitarian actors has failed to yield a corresponding improvement in the security of the civilian population The International Committee of the Red Cross ICRC and the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees UNHCR are two of the most important humanitarian agencies for the protection of civilians and both have protection at the heart of their mandates Protecting Civilians in War explores how organizational history structure and culture affect how each organization goes about protection and highlights the ways in which their resulting approaches to protection are inherently limited Whereas existing explanations for shortcomings in humanitarian protection tend to blame factors external to humanitarian agencies the focus of this book is on the organizations themselves and their understandings of protection While acknowledging the importance of other actors in determining the level of civilian security or insecurity the analysis in this book focuses on the ways in which the ICRC and UNHCR conceptualise and practise protection in order to add another layer to our understanding of why protection outcomes are so often so disappointing Based on research in Geneva Colombia the Democratic Republic of Congo and Myanmar it examines headquarter level policy and the way that such policy is translated into practice on the ground
