Rice Global Networks And New Histories:

Rice Francesca Bray, Peter A. Coclanis, Edda L. Fields-Black, Dagmar Schaefer, 2015 Global Networks and New Histories

Rice today is food to half the world's population. Its history is inextricably entangled with the emergence of colonialism, the global networks of industrial capitalism and the modern world economy. The history of rice is currently a vital and innovative field of research attracting serious attention, but no attempt has yet been made to write a history of rice and its place in the rise of capitalism from a global and comparative perspective. Rice is a first step toward such a history. The fifteen chapters written by specialists on Africa, the Americas and several regions of Asia are premised on the utility of a truly international approach to history. Each one brings a new approach that unsettles prevailing narratives and suggests new connections. Together they cast new light on the significant roles of rice as crop, food and commodity and shape historical trajectories and interregional linkages in Africa, the Americas, Europe and Asia.

The Oxford Handbook of Agricultural History Jeannie M. Whayne, 2024

Agricultural history has enjoyed a rebirth in recent years in part because the agricultural enterprise promotes economic and cultural connections in an era that has become ever more globally focused but also because of agriculture's potential to lead to conflicts over precious resources. The Oxford Handbook of Agricultural History reflects this rebirth and examines the wide-reaching implications of agricultural issues featuring essays that touch on the green revolution, the development of the Atlantic slave plantation, the agricultural impact of the American Civil War, the rise of scientific and corporate agriculture and modern exploitation of agricultural labor.

Microhistories of Technology Mikael Hård, 2023-02-20

In this open access book Mikael Hård tells a story of how people around the world challenged the production techniques and products brought by globalization. Retaining their autonomy and freedom, creative individuals selectively adopted or rejected modern gadgets, tools and machines. In standard historical narratives, globalization is portrayed as an unstoppable force that flattens all obstacles in its path. Modern technology is also seen as inexorable in the nineteenth century: steamships, telegraph lines and Gatling guns are said to have paved the way for colonialism and other forms of dominating people and societies. Later, shipping containers and computer networks purportedly pulled the planet deeper into a maelstrom of capitalism. Hård discusses instances that push back against these narratives. For example, in Soviet times inhabitants of Samarkand, Uzbekistan, preferred to remain in and expand their own mud-brick houses rather than move into prefabricated concrete residential buildings. Similarly, nineteenth-century Sumatran carpenters ignored the saws brought to them by missionaries and chose to chop down trees with their arch-bladed adzes. And people in colonial India successfully competed with capitalist-run Caribbean sugar plantations, continuing to produce their own muscovado and sell it to local consumers. This book invites readers to view the history of technology and material culture through the lens of diversity. Based on research funded by the European Research Council and conducted in the Global South, Microhistories of Technology: Making the World shows that the spread of modern technologies did not erase artisanal production methods and traditional tools Jack Goody between Social Anthropology and World History LIT Verlag, 2024-10-01 A giant of British social anthropology Jack Goody 1919-2015 laboured for sixty years to transcend the view that anthropology was the study of other cultures. He wanted to move it in the direction of a more sociological postcolonial comparative social science. The most important precondition for this science was the freeing of world history from centuries of Eurocentric bias. From his base in Cambridge, Goody's influence and inspiration spread out internationally. In Germany as a long-term adviser to the Max Planck Society, he played a key role in the establishment of the Max Planck Institute for Social Anthropology in Halle Saale in 1999. This volume presents twelve Goody Lectures delivered in Halle between 2011 and 2022 together with an unpublished lecture given in 2004 by Goody himself and biographical and bibliographical essays by the editors. Global History and New Polycentric Approaches Manuel Perez Garcia, Lucio De Sousa, 2017-12-06 This book is open access under a CC BY 4.0 license. Rethinking the ways global history is envisioned and conceptualized in diverse countries such as China, Japan, Mexico, or Spain, this collection considers how global issues are connected with our local and national communities. It examines how the discipline had evolved in various historiographies from Anglo-Saxon to southern European and its emergence in Asia with the rapid development of the Chinese economy, motivation to legitimate the current uniqueness of the history and economy of the nation. It contributes to the revitalization of the field of global history in Chinese historiography which have been dominated by national narratives and promotes a debate to open new venues in which important features such as scholarly mobility, diversity, and internationalization are firmly rooted, putting aside national specificities. Dealing with new approaches on the use of empirical data by framing the proper questions and hypotheses and connecting western and eastern sources, this text opens a new forum of discussion on how global history has penetrated in western and eastern historiographies, moving the pivotal axis of analysis from national perspectives to open new venues of global history. Entangled Itineraries Pamela H. Smith, 2019-05-22 Trade flowed across Eurasia around the Indian Ocean and over the Mediterranean for millennia, but in the early modern period larger parts of the globe became connected through these established trade routes. Knowledge embodied in various people, materials, texts, objects, and practices also moved and came together along these routes in hubs of exchange where different social and cultural groups intersected and interacted. Entangled Itineraries traces this movement of knowledge across the Eurasian continent from the early years of the Common Era to the nineteenth century, following local goods, techniques, tools, and writings as they traveled and transformed into new material and intellectual objects and ways of knowing. Focusing on nonlinear trajectories of knowledge in motion, this volume follows itineraries that weaved in and out of busy, crowded cosmopolitan cities in China in the trade hubs of Kucha and Malacca and in centers of Arabic scholarship such as Rey and Baghdad, which resonated in Bursa, Assam, and even as far as southern France. Contributors explore the many ways in which materials, practices, and knowledge systems were transformed and codified as they converged, swelled at times, disappeared, and often reemerged anew. A New Plantation World Daniel Vivian, 2018-03 Examines the creation of sporting plantations in the South Carolina lowcountry during the first four decades of the twentieth century An East Asian Route of Industrialization? The Case of Japan, 1868-1937 Peer Vries, 2022-08-01 In this book Peer Vries is the first scholar to provide an extensive test of the claim that industrialization in East Asia in particular in Japan between the Meiji Restoration and World War Two would have been much more labour intensive than industrialization in the West He does this by systematically comparing the role and importance of labour and capital in Japan and in a number of Western countries at a similar stage of their industrial development He uses macro economic data as well as specific observations by people at the time It turns out that there is no reason to distinguish a specific labour intensive Japanese route of industrialization His comparative analysis provides us with a better understanding of the logic of industrialization in both West and East The Oxford Handbook of Commodity History Jonathan Curry-Machado, Jean Stubbs, William Gervase Clarence-Smith, Jelmer Vos, 2024 The Oxford Handbook of Commodity History features contributions from scholars involved in the field's development across a range of countries and linguistic regions Each of the handbook's thirty-one chapters focuses on an important theme within commodity history essential approaches global histories modes of production people and land environmental impact consumption and new methodologies Rural-Urban Migration and Agro-Technological Change in Post-Reform China Lena Kaufmann, 2025-10-01 How do rural Chinese households deal with the conflicting pressures of migrating into cities to work as well as staying at home to preserve their fields This is particularly challenging for rice farmers because paddy fields have to be cultivated continuously to retain their soil quality and value Drawing on ethnographic fieldwork and written sources Rural Urban Migration and Agro Technological Change in Post Reform China describes farming households' strategic solutions to this predicament It shows how in light of rural urban migration and agro technological change they manage to sustain both migration and farming It innovatively conceives rural households as part of a larger farming community of practice that spans both staying and migrating household members and their material world Focusing on one exemplary resource paddy fields it argues that socio technical resources are key factors in understanding migration flows and migrant home relations Overall this book provides rare insights into the rural side of migration and farmers' knowledge and agency
