

OSHA HAZWOPER Training

What Is OSHA HAZWOPER Training?

OSHA HAZWOPER training is required for five specific groups of workers who respond to the uncontrolled release of hazardous substances. The course you need depends on your job function, responsibilities, and previous level of training. Topics covered in OSHA HAZWOPER training include types of worksite hazards, detecting hazardous material, site emergencies, site safety planning and decontamination plans, toxicology, materials handling and more.

Train with OSHA Education Center at your own pace and earn your OSHA HAZWOPER digital course certificate - a common requirement for employment in hazardous industries.

HAZWOPER training applies to workers and employers involved in five specific types of operations outlined in OSHA's HAZWOPER standard:

- Cleanup operations required by a governmental body (federal, state, local or other) involving hazardous substances and conducted at an uncontrolled hazardous waste site
- Corrective actions involving cleanup operations at sites covered by the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA)
- Hazardous waste operations conducted at treatment, storage and disposal (TSD) facilities regulated under RCRA
- Operations at non-TSD facilities that generate hazardous waste
- Emergency response operations involving the release of or substantial threat of release of hazardous substances regardless of the location of the hazards
