Press Freedom In Africa Comparative Perspectives:

Press Freedom in Africa Herman Wasserman, 2013-09-13 This book gives an overview of current debates surrounding press freedom in Africa in response to ongoing contestations between media and governments on the continent Through case studies of individual African countries as well as international comparisons a wide range of global contributors provide critical assessments of the state of press freedom on the continent and critical perspectives on the dominant discourses around freedom and democracy Some fear an alarming slide towards a media intolerant environment in South Africa and the proposed Media Appeals Tribunal and the Protection of State Information Bill POSIB have met with strong criticism from journalism practitioners and educators This book examines these and other recent developments seen to represent a threat to press freedom on the African continent Contributors to the volume take a comparative look at the situation in South Africa within a broader global context of transitions to democracy and globalised marketization of the media as well as inspecting specific African examples that may serve to illuminate broader trends Case studies from different African countries are examined but in the process the discourses around press freedom are also subjected to critical scrutiny Critics state that the South African media are not without fault and that part of journalism scholarship s role is to continue to point to these shortcomings and to suggest ways of improving the media s democratic responsibility Press Freedom in Africa provides a range of perspectives on the heated debates surrounding press freedom It illustrates the importance of research based scholarly interventions into the often emotional and rhetorical debates surrounding the role of the media in African society This book was originally published as a special issue of Ecquid Novi African Journalism Studies Newsmaking Cultures in Africa Hayes Mawindi Mabweazara, 2018-06-05 This book contributes to a broadened theorisation of journalism by exploring the intricacies of African journalism and its connections with the material realities that underpin the profession on the continent It pulls together theoretically driven studies that collectively deploy a wide range of evidence to shed some light on newsmaking cultures in Africa the everyday routines defining epistemologies as well as ethical dilemmas The volume digs beneath the standardised and universalised veneer of professionalism to unpack routine practices and normative trends shaped by local factors including the structural conditions of deprivation entrenched political instability and interference pervasive neo patrimonial governance systems and the influences of technological developments These varied and complex circumstances are shown to profoundly shape the foundations of journalism in Africa resulting in routine practices that are both normatively distinct and equally in tune with imported Western journalistic cultures The book thus broadly points to the dialectical nature of news production and the inconsistent and contradictory relationships that characterise news production cultures in Africa African Thought in Comparative Perspective Ali A. Mazrui, 2014-03-25 African Thought in Comparative Perspective showcases how adept Ali Mazrui the most prolific writer on Africa today is at using complex conceptual apparatuses to categorize and synthesize Africa s political and social thought This book thus offers an original interpretation of the knowledge that has been accumulated over the years and which is of timeless relevance It covers such themes as the legacy of the African liberation movements the convergence and divergence of African Islamic and Western thought nationalist ideologies in Africa the role of religion in African politics and the impact of Ancient Greek philosophy on contemporary Africa

China's Media and Soft Power in Africa X. Zhang,H. Wasserman,W. Mano,2016-04-08 This volume brings together scholars from different disciplines and nations to examine and assess the effectiveness of China s soft power initiatives in Africa It throws light not only on China s engagement with Africa but also on how China s increasing influence is received in the African media

Politics and Journalism in Francophone Africa Marie-Soleil Frère,2022-08-22 This book provides a comprehensive approach of the media journalism and politics in Sub Saharan Francophone Africa The author argues that there are common features that the media and journalism share in the seventeen countries of Francophone Africa and these make the local media systems different from what they are in neighboring English speaking African countries and in the rest of the world The approach of the media in French speaking Africa has not only to be de Westernized but also to step out of general overviews considering African media This project shows the historical political economic and sociological characteristics of the media systems of seventeen French speaking countries of Africa

Media and Development Richard Vokes,2017-11-15 At the start of the 21st century the relationship between media and development has never felt more important Following a series of media revolutions throughout the developing world beginning with the advent of cheap transistor radio sets in the late 1960s followed by the rapid expansion of satellite television networks in the 1990s and the more recent explosion of mobile telephony social media and the internet a majority of people living in the Global South now have access to a wide variety of Information and Communications Technologies ICTs and live in media saturated environments Yet how can radio television and mobile phones be most effectively harnessed towards the goals of purposive economic social and political change Should they be seen as primarily a provider of channels through which useful information can be delivered to target populations in the hope that such information will alter those populations existing behaviours Or should they be seen as a tool for facilitating two way communication between development providers and their recipients i e as technologies for improving participatory development Or should new media environments be approached simply as sites in which people living in the developing world can define development on their own terms This timely and original book which is based on a critical reading of the relevant literatures and on the author s own extensive primary research introduces readers to all of these questions and helps them to reach their own informed positions on each It also examines the history of and current debates regarding media representations of development Drawing on case studies from all over the world including hate radio in Rwanda theatre for development in India telenovelas in Latin America mobile banking and money in Africa and GIS and humanitarianism in Haiti it will be of interest to all undergraduate and postgraduate students of media and development international development professionals and simply to anyone with an interest in how media does can or should change the world

The Palgrave Handbook of Media and Communication Research in Africa Bruce Mutsvairo, 2018-03-22 This handbook attempts to fill the gap in empirical scholarship of media and communication research in Africa from an Africanist perspective The collection draws on expert knowledge of key media and communication scholars in Africa and the diaspora offering a counter narrative to existing Western and Eurocentric discourses of knowledge production As the decolonial turn takes centre stage across Africa this collection further rethinks media and communication research in a post colonial setting and provides empirical evidence as to why some of the methods conceptualised in Europe will not work in Africa The result is a thorough appraisal of the current threats challenges and opportunities facing the discipline on the continent

Data Journalism in the Global South Bruce Mutsvairo, Saba Behawi, Eddy Borges-Rey, 2020-01-31 This volume seeks to analyse the emerging wave of data journalism in the Global South It does so by examining trends developments and opportunities for data journalism in the aforementioned contexts Whilst studies in this specific form of journalism are increasing in numbers and significance there remains a dearth of literature on data journalism in less developed regions of the world By demonstrating an interest in data journalism across countries including Chile Argentina the Philippines South Africa and Iran among others this volume contributes to multifaceted transnational debates on journalism and is a crucial reference text for anyone interested in data journalism in the developing world Drawing on a range of voices from different fields and nations sharing empirical and theoretical experiences the volume aims to initiate a global dialogue among journalism practitioners researchers and students

Everyday Media Culture in Africa Wendy Willems, Winston Mano, 2016-11-10 African audiences and users are rapidly gaining in importance and increasingly targeted by global media companies social media platforms and mobile phone operators This is the first edited volume that addresses the everyday lived experiences of Africans in their interaction with different kinds of media old and new state and private elite and popular global and national material and virtual So far the bulk of academic research on media and communication in Africa has studied media through the lens of media state relations thereby adopting liberal democracy as the normative ideal and examining the potential contribution of African media to development and democratization Focusing instead on everyday media culture in a range of African countries this volume contributes to the broader project of provincializing and decolonizing audience and internet studies

Media and Democracy in Africa Michael Leslie, 2017-07-05 Recent discussion of democratization in Africa has focused primarily on the reform of formal state institutions the public service the judiciary and the legislature Similarly both scholars and activists have shown interest in how associational life and with it a civil society might be enhanced in the countries of the African continent Much less concern however has been directed to the communications media although they form a vital part of this process Media and Democracy in Africa provides the first comprehensive and up to date assessment of the role of the media in political change in sub Saharan Africa The central argument of the volume is that while the media may still be relatively weak compared to their positions in liberal democracies they have come to play a much more important role than ever before since independence. Although they have not yet demonstrated sufficient effectiveness as public watchdogs and agenda setters they have succeeded in creating new communicative spaces for people who have previously been intimidated or silent. Building on this the contributors argue that a different conceptualization of democratization than the mainstream currently uses may be necessary to capture the process in Africa where it is characterized by contestation rather than consolidation. This volume shows that the media scene in Africa is diverse. It stretches from the well developed and technologically advanced situation in South Africa to the still fledgling media operations that are typical in sub Saharan Africa. In these countries print media as well as television and radio are just beginning to take their place in society and do so using simple and often outdated technology. The volume also examines how these growing outlets are supplemented by informal media the so called radio trottoir or rumor mill whereby the autocratic and bureaucratic direction of public affairs are subject to private speculation and analysis. Media and Democracy in Africa is organized to provide a historical perspective on the evolution of the African media placing the present in the context of the past including both colonial and post colonial experiences. It will be of interest to Africa area specialists students of media and communications political scientists and sociologists.
