Presidents And Assemblies Constitutional Design And Electoral Dynamics:

Presidents and Assemblies Matthew Soberg Shugart, John M. Carey, 1992-08-28 In recent years renewed attention has been directed to the importance of the role of institutional design in democratic politics Particular interest has concerned constitutional design and the relative merits of parliamentary versus presidential systems In this book the authors systematically assess the strengths and weaknesses of various forms of presidential systems drawing on recent developments in the theoretical literature about institutional design and electoral rules They develop a typology of democratic regimes structured around the separation of powers principle including two hybrid forms the premier presidential and president parliamentary systems and they evaluate a number of alternative ways of balancing powers between the branches within these basic frameworks They also demonstrate that electoral rules are critically important in determining how political authority is exercised

Presidents and Assemblies Matthew Soberg Shugart, 1992 Presidents, Assemblies and Policy-making in Asia Y. Kasuya, 2013-04-08 The authors assess the constitutional and partisan powers of Asian presidents and analyse how they are used in actual policy making processes Country case studies on Afghanistan Indonesia the Philippines South Korea Sri Lanka and Taiwan analyze how their constitutional and partisan powers are used in actual policy making processes

The Oxford Handbook of Comparative Politics Carles Boix, Susan Carol Stokes, 2007 The Oxford Handbooks of Political Science is a ten volume set of reference books offering authoritative and engaging critical overviews of the state of political science Each volume focuses on a particular part of the discipline with volumes on Public Policy Political Theory Political Economy Contextual Political Analysis Comparative Politics International Relations Law and Politics Political Behavior Political Institutions and Political Methodology The project as a whole is under the General Editorship of Robert E Goodin with each volume being edited by a distinguished international group of specialists in their respective fields The books set out not just to report on the discipline but to shape it The series will be an indispensable point of reference for anyone working in political science and adjacent disciplines The Oxford Handbook of Comparative Politics offers a critical survey of the field of empirical political science through the collection of a set of chapters written by 47 top scholars in the discipline of comparative politics Part I includes chapters surveying the key research methodologies employed in comparative politics the comparative method the use of history the practice and status of case study research the contributions of field research and assessing the possibility of constructing a science of comparative politics Parts II to IV examine the foundations of political order the origins of states and the extent to which they relate to war and to economic development the sources of compliance or political obligation among citizens democratic transitions the role of civic culture authoritarianism revolutions civil wars and contentious politics Parts V and VI explore the mobilization representation and coordination of political demands Part V considers why parties emerge the forms they take and the ways in which voters choose parties It then includes chapters on collective action social movements and political participation Part VI opens up with essays on the mechanisms through which political demands are aggregated and coordinated This sets the agenda to the systematic exploration of the workings and effects of particular institutions electoral systems federalism legislative executive relationships the judiciary and bureaucracy Finally Part VII is organized around the burgeoning literature on macropolitical economy of the last two decades Presidents, Monarchs, and Prime Ministers Carsten Anckar, 2022-05-29 During the last three decades there has been a growing interest in systems that combine elements of parliamentarism and presidentialism Despite the fact that much attention has been directed towards the semi presidential form of government in particular it is evident that many aspects of regime forms remain unexplored This book systematically categorises democratic political regimes with a separate head of state and government including regimes with a monarch and prime minister and president and PM globally and over a long historical period 1850 2019 It analyses how regimes with a dual executive emerge and what trajectories they follow It also explores the stability of these regimes across time and space An important feature of this endeavour is to address actual powers of the head of state rather than constitutional provisions President and Congress in Postauthoritarian Chile Peter M. Siavelis, 2010-11-01 As many formerly authoritarian regimes have been replaced by democratic governments in Latin America Eastern Europe and elsewhere questions have arisen about the stability and durability of these new governments One concern has to do with the institutional arrangements for governing bequeathed to the new democratic regimes by their authoritarian predecessors and with the related issue of whether presidential or parliamentary systems work better for the consolidation of democracy In this book Peter Siavelis takes a close look at the important case of Chile which had a long tradition of successful legislative resolution of conflict but was left by the Pinochet regime with a changed institutional framework that greatly strengthened the presidency at the expense of the legislature Weakening of the legislature combined with an exclusionary electoral system Siavelis argues undermines the ability of Chile's National Congress to play its former role as an arena of accommodation creating serious obstacles to interbranch cooperation and ultimately democratic governability Unlike other studies that contrast presidential and parliamentary systems in the large Siavelis examines a variety of factors including socioeconomic conditions and characteristics of political parties that affect whether or not one of these systems will operate more or less successfully at any given time He also offers proposals for institutional reform that could mitigate the harm he expects the current political structure to produce

Stuffing the Ballot Box Fabrice E. Lehoucq, Ivan Molina, 2002-06-13 Stuffing the Ballot Box is a pioneering study of electoral fraud and reform It focuses on Costa Rica a country where parties gradually transformed a fraud ridden political system into one renowned for its stability and fair elections by the mid twentieth century Lehoucq and Molina draw upon a unique database of more than 1 300 accusations of ballot rigging to show that parties denounced fraud where electoral laws made the struggle for power more competitive They explain how institutional arrangements generated opportunities for executives to assemble legislative coalitions to enact far reaching reforms This book also argues that nonpartisan commissions should run elections and explains why splitting responsibility over election affairs between the executive and the legislature is a recipe for partisan rancour and political conflict Stuffing the Ballot Box will interest a broad array of political and social scientists constitutional scholars historians election specialists and policy makers interested in electoral fraud and institutional reform

Parliamentary Power in Russia, 1994-2001 T. Troxel, 2002-12-09 This book is the first study of the power of the Russian Parliament in the policy process from 1994 2001 within the context of executive legislative relations It challenges the widely held view that between 1994 and 2001 Russia had a presidential system with a strong authoritarian leader who ruled by decree and a weak parliament which did not have much power

The President's Dilemma in Asia Don S. Lee, 2024-05-23 The President's Dilemma in Asia provides one of the first comprehensive and comparative theory of presidential government formation In the authoritarian era presidents had greater control over key institutional actors in the process such as the legislature the ruling party and the bureaucracy However after democratic transition they have to navigate competing pressures from these political institutions This book highlights the major trade off that presidents of new democracies face in their relationship with the different political institutions the so called president's dilemma and their strategy in dealing with the dilemma Existing studies of presidential government formation in new democracies have largely overlooked the entirety of the structure of the political institutions surrounding the president and its impact on the president's government formation strategy This book offers a view that government formation is a window to understanding how presidents weigh the benefits of appointing ministers representing different political institutions under a variety of given institutional circumstances The question of which institution presidents attempt to accommodate through government formation is a high stakes one and addressing it is important because particular patterns of personnel distribution can influence the kind of policies political leaders adopt and the level of accountability and responsiveness to constituents these policies represent

Peacebuilding in the Asia-Pacific Carmela Lutmar, James Ockey, 2018-09-04 This book explores theories of conflict and peacebuilding and applies them to case studies from the Asia Pacific region seeking to shift attention to the inherency of conflict the constant danger of re emergence and the need to establish mechanisms to resolve it The authors argue that the central focus of peacebuilding should not be state building per se but rather the creation of effective mechanisms for peaceful resolution of both past and newly emerging conflicts To do so it is important to consider the entire process of creating peace to contemplate the linkages between conflict resolution and post conflict peacebuilding rather than focus only on the period of institution building
