How Violence Shapes Religion Ziya Meral, 2018-08-23 Is there an inevitable global violent clash unfolding between the world's largest religions Islam and Christianity Do religions cause violent conflicts or are there other factors at play How can we make sense of increasing reports of violence between Christian and Muslim ethnic communities across the world By seeking to answer such questions about the relationship between religion and violence in today's world Ziya Meral challenges popular theories and offers an alternative explanation grounded on insights inferred from real cases of ethno religious violence in Africa and the Middle East The relationship between religion and violence runs deep and both are intrinsic to the human story Violence leads to and shapes religion while religion acts to enable violence as well as providing responses that contain and prevent it However with religious violence being one of the most serious challenges facing the modern world Meral shows that we need to de globalise our analysis and focus on individual conflicts instead of attempting to provide single answers to complex questions

implementation of various innovative activities research perspectives and collaboration formats which all subscribe to the principle of dialogue on equal footing with scholars and activists based in divergent positionalities along and beyond the Global North South divide In different ways the authors work toward the goal of producing more adequate and more sensitive critical knowledge and applying a fresh view to approach methods and ethical standards Overall the volume works sometimes in exploratory ways with alternative frames of reference while it presents diverse theorizations of lived experiences
