systems Criminological and Legal Consequences of Climate Change Stephen Farrall, Tawhida Ahmed, Duncan French, 2012-04-02 This edited collection the result of an international seminar held at the International Institute for the Sociology of Law Oñati Spain in 2010 explores the potential legal and criminological consequences of climate change both domestically and for the international community A novel feature of the book is the consideration given to the potential synergies between the two disciplinary foci thus to encourage among legal scholars and criminologists not only an analysis of the consequences of climate change from these perspectives but to bring these fields together to provide a unique interdisciplinary exploration of the ways in which climate change does or could impact on our societies Such an interdisciplinary approach is necessary given that climate change is a multifaceted phenomenon and one which is intimately linked across disciplines To study this topic from the point of view of a single social science discipline restricts our understanding of the societal consequences of climate change It is hoped that this edited collection will identify emerging areas of concern illuminate areas for further research and most of all encourage future academic discussion on this most critical of issues

Regulatory Gaps in Baltic Sea Governance Henrik Ringbom, 2018-04-04 The focus of this publication is the uniqueness of the Baltic Sea from a legal perspective and the regulatory voids that result from the multiple layers of regulation this area is subjected to up to six layers of regulation general international law regional conventions EU law national laws local and municipal rules plus a whole range of non binding norms and other soft law arrangements act in parallel However a large number of rules or regulatory layers does not in itself ensure effectiveness or consistency When the regulatory landscape is approached from the point of view of individual substantive topics it is apparent that the norms of different regulatory layers entail both overlaps gaps and uncertainties differently for each topic This publication addresses a selection of topics that are decidedly international in nature but for which current international and EU rules include important gaps or uncertainties In addition to presenting a set of legal analyses of topical issues for the region which in itself is a meritorious objective in view of the relative scarcity of legal studies with a focus on the Baltic Sea the publication also seeks to analyze the regulatory anatomy of the selected issues in more detail Through the legal analyses the chapters explore how regulatory gaps are formed how they are filled how the rules of the different layers work together and interact with each other in the selected areas Accordingly the secondary ambition is to explore through the chapters whether more general conclusions can be drawn about the nature of the regulatory gaps and multi layerism in order to produce a better understanding of how regulations on multiple levels operate in practice Proceedings ,1995 CD ROM copy for 2001 contains also abstracts since 1969 full text proceedings for 1995 2001 and technical papers for 1995 1999 Congressional Record United States.
