

Self-Objectification in Women: Causes, Consequences, and Counteractions

(Editors: Rachel M. Calogero, Stacey Tantleff-Dunn, & J. Kevin Thompson)

Summary

Modern industrialized society chronically and pervasively objectifies the female body, and many women have come to view themselves through the lens of an external observer, habitually monitoring their own appearance whether in public or private settings. Given the negative effects associated with self-objectification—such as body shame, appearance anxiety, depression, and disordered eating—an empirically based approach to researching and counteracting self-objectification is critical. This book integrates recent research developments and current clinical knowledge on self-objectification in women. Using Barbara L. Fredrickson and Tomi-Ann Roberts' objectification theory as a framework, the contributors address various aspects of the theory, including evidence for and causes of self-objectification across the life span, psychological consequences, and associated mental health risks. The book also discusses various scales for measuring self-objectification, as well as approaches to prevent and disrupt this phenomenon. With research from a variety of disciplines—psychology, sociology, anthropology, women's studies, and political science—this book should be read by everyone interested in the well-being of women.

psychotherapeutic contributions in clinical practice with at risk children and their families Chapters by experts working in a range of edge of care settings give an essential account of real world clinical challenges and dilemmas whilst drawing on relevant theory and the growing evidence base for edge of care work with children and families This title will be of interest to both clinical and social work practitioners those commissioning and developing best practice in edge of care services scholars and students of Clinical Psychology Systemic Psychotherapy and related disciplines The End of Love Eva Illouz, 2021-09-15 Western culture has endlessly represented the ways in which love miraculously erupts in people's lives the mythical moment in which one knows someone is destined for us the feverish waiting for a phone call or an email the thrill that runs down our spine at the mere thought of him or her Yet a culture that has so much to say about love is virtually silent on the no less mysterious moments when we avoid falling in love where we fall out of love when the one who kept us awake at night now leaves us indifferent or when we hurry away from those who excited us a few months or even a few hours before In The End of Love Eva Illouz documents the multifarious ways in which relationships end She argues that if modern love was once marked by the freedom to enter sexual and emotional bonds according to one's will and choice contemporary love has now become characterized by practices of non choice the freedom to withdraw from relationships Illouz dubs this process by which relationships fade evaporate dissolve and break down unloving While sociology has classically focused on the formation of social bonds The End of Love makes a powerful case for studying why and how social bonds collapse and dissolve Particularly striking is the role that capitalism plays in practices of non choice and unloving The unmaking of social bonds she argues is connected to contemporary capitalism which is characterized by practices of non commitment and non choice practices that enable the quick withdrawal from a transaction and the quick realignment of prices and the breaking of loyalties Unloving and non choice have in turn a profound impact on society and economics as they explain why people may be having fewer children increasingly living alone and having less sex The End of Love presents a profound and original analysis of the effects of capitalism and consumer culture on personal relationships and of what the dissolution of personal relationships means for capitalism The Wrong Prescription for Women Maureen C. McHugh, Joan C. Chrisler, 2015-07-14 This groundbreaking book challenges the medicalized approach to women's experiences including menstruation pregnancy and menopause and suggests that there are better ways for women to cope with real issues they may face Before any woman diets douches botoxes reduces reconstructs or fills a prescription for antidepressants statins hormones menstrual suppressants or diet pills she should read this book Contesting common medical practice the book addresses the many aspects of women's lives that have been targeted as deficient in order to support the billion dollar profits of the medical pharmacological industry and suggests alternatives to these remedies The contributors psychologists sociologists and health experts are also gender experts and feminist scholars who recognize the ways in which gender is an important aspect of the human experience In this eye opening work they challenge the marketing and science that increasingly render women's bodies and experiences as a series of symptoms diseases and dysfunctions that require treatment by medical professionals who prescribe pharmaceutical and surgical interventions Each article in the book addresses the marketing of a specific condition that has been constructed in a way that convinces a woman that her body is inadequate or her experience and behavior are not good enough Among the topics addressed are menstruation menopause pregnancy post partum adjustment sexual desire weight body dissatisfaction moodiness depression grief and anxiety
