Causation, Prediction, and Search Peter Spirtes, Clark N. Glymour, Richard Scheines, 2000 What assumptions and methods allow us to turn observations into causal knowledge and how can even incomplete causal knowledge be used in planning and prediction to influence and control our environment In this book Peter Spirtes Clark Glymour and Richard Scheines address these questions using the formalism of Bayes networks with results that have been applied in diverse areas of research in the social behavioral and physical sciences The authors show that although experimental and observational study designs may not always permit the same inferences they are subject to uniform principles They axiomatize the connection between causal structure and probabilistic independence explore several varieties of causal indistinguishability formulate a theory of manipulation and develop asymptotically reliable procedures for searching over equivalence classes of causal models including models of categorical data and structural equation models with and without latent variables The authors show that the relationship between causality and probability can also help to clarify such diverse topics in statistics as the comparative power of experimentation versus observation Simpson's paradox errors in regression models retrospective versus prospective sampling and variable selection The second edition contains a new introduction and an extensive survey of advances and applications that have appeared since the first edition was published in 1993 Psychometrics C.R. Rao, Sandip Sinharay, 2007 This volume representing a compilation of authoritative reviews on a multitude of uses of statistics in epidemiology and medical statistics written by internationally renowned experts is addressed to statisticians working in biomedical and epidemiological fields who use statistical and quantitative methods in their work While the use of statistics in these fields has a long and rich history explosive growth of science in general and clinical and epidemiological sciences in particular have gone through a sea of change spawning the development of new methods and innovative adaptations of standard methods Since the literature is highly scattered the Editors have undertaken this humble exercise to document a representative collection of topics of broad interest to diverse users The volume spans a cross section of standard topics oriented toward users in the current evolving field as well as special topics in much need which have more recent origins This volume was prepared especially keeping the applied statisticians in mind emphasizing applications oriented methods and techniques including references to appropriate software when relevant The contributors are internationally renowned experts in their respective areas This volume addresses emerging statistical challenges in epidemiological biomedical and pharmaceutical research It features methods for assessing Biomarkers analysis of competing risks clinical trials including sequential and group sequential crossover designs cluster randomized and adaptive designs and structural equations modelling and longitudinal data analysis
