illustrate and analyze how literacy practices that are mediated through and influenced by popular culture create both opportunities and tensions for secondary and university students. The authors examine issues of theory, identity, and pedagogy as they address participatory popular culture sites such as fan forums, video blogs, social networking sites, anime, memes, and comics, and graphic novels. Uniquely bringing together scholarship about online literacy practices and the growing body of work on participatory popular culture, New Media Literacies and Participatory Popular Culture across Borders makes distinctive contributions to an emerging field of study, pushing forward scholarship about literacy and identity in cross-cultural situations and advancing important conversations about issues of global flows and local responses to popular culture.

Transforming Dinosaurs Into Vampires John Passy, 2012-04-12. The book makes a big promise: changing large Dinosaur companies into agile, disruptive VAMPIRES that will conquer through disruptive innovations the world. How can you create not just a great product but a product or service that conquers the world: a vampire product that puts you in the center? As the world has to be ruled by academic innovation warriors, this book is different: created from field experiences and easy to read. Rather than a 'do this, don't do this' description, this book has to walk on its own and explains in detail why BIG companies and STARTUPS fail to create success stories. Starting with all the wrong ideas we receive from leading business gurus and that create the conditions for our own innovation failures, the book then delivers the rules and recommendations to create a disruptive innovation roadmap that can make it happen for any kind of business. This book doesn't hide itself to make a difference. Mediaweek, 2008.
