Making Prussians, Raising Germans Jasper Heinzen, 2017-08-31 An investigation into why the creation of nation states coincided with bouts of civil war in the nineteenth century Western world Soldiers as Police Anja Johansen, 2017-11-28 This book looks at the policing of social and political protest and of the role played by the French and Prussian armies in maintaining public order in the years leading up to the First World War The period 1890 to 1914 was characterised by mass protest in both countries as the political social and economic order of the German Empire and the French Third Republic were repeatedly challenged by industrial disputes public protest and riots In Berlin and Paris the political elites urgently needed to find ways of sustaining economic growth while maintaining political stability through their management of law and order enforcement At the same time public authorities had to carefully consider how protest was to be policed in a way that would not further alienate important groups from the existing regime Confronted with this dilemma the use of the French and Prussian armies in maintenance of public order became an increasing concern for the government ministers provincial administrators and military commanders of both countries During the 1890s however the use of troops for protest policing in these two countries took diverging trajectories As well as examining the differing methods of policing of social and political protest this work also investigates the internal functioning of the French Third Republic and the German Empire in particular the relationship between the civil and military elites at the central and regional levels By examining the use of troops in the two most industrialised areas of Germany and France the Westphalian Ruhr district and the French region of Nord Pas de Calais the study describes how the governments and the provincial administrations in the two countries adopted distinctly dissimilar paths towards modernisation of protest policing

Constructivism in

International Relations Maja Zehfuss, 2002-07-25 Maja Zehfuss book offers a fundamental critique of constructivism focusing on the work of Wendt Onuf and Kratochwil Using Germany's shift towards participation in international military operations as an illustration she demonstrates why each version of constructivism fails in its own project and comes apart on the basis of its own assumptions Inspired by Derridean thought this book highlights the political consequences of constructivist representations of reality Each critique concludes that constructivist notions of key concepts are impossible and that this is not merely a question of theoretical inconsistency but of politics The book is premised on the notion that the empirical and the theoretical are less separate than is acknowledged in international relations and must be read as intertwined Zehfuss examines the scholars role in international relations worrying that by looking to constructivism as the future they will be severely curtailing their ability to act responsibly in this area

Germany and Israel Daniel Marwecki, 2020 A radical reinterpretation of the relationship between two states whose history has always been intertwined particularly revisiting Germany's involvement in the Palestinian question

Defeat and Memory J. Macleod, 2008-11-03 The legacy of defeat in war reverberates through private and collective memory and remains a sub text in international relations and political discourse This book examines the manner in which a series of military defeats have been understood and remembered by individuals and societies in the era of modern industrialised warfare
