supply is limited both in quantity and in seasonal availability and that are often infected with pathogens. The current low quality of hatchery produced PL due to infection with white spot syndrome virus WSSV and other pathogens entering the hatcheries via infected broodstock contaminated intake water or other sources due to poor hatchery management practices including inadequate biosecurity is a major obstacle to achieving sustainable shrimp aquaculture in India and the Asia Pacific region. Considering the major contribution of the tiger shrimp to global shrimp production and the economic losses resulting from disease outbreaks it is essential that the shrimp farming sector invest in good management practices for the production of healthy and quality seed. This document reviews the current state of the Indian shrimp hatchery industry and provides detailed guidance and protocols for improving the productivity, health management, biosecurity and sustainability of the sector. Following a brief review of shrimp hatchery development in India, the major requirements for hatchery production are discussed under the headings: infrastructure, facility maintenance, inlet water quality and treatment, wastewater treatment, biosecurity, standard operating procedures (SOPs), the Hazard Analysis Critical Control Point (HACCP) approach, chemical use during the hatchery production process and health assessment. Pre-spawning procedures covered include the use of wild domesticated and specific pathogen free (SPF) specific pathogen resistant (SPR) broodstock, broodstock landing centres and holding techniques, broodstock selection, transport, utilization, quarantine, health screening, maturation, nutrition and spawning, egg hatching, nauplius selection, egg nauplius disinfection and washing and holding, disease testing and transportation of nauplii. Post-spawning procedures covered include larval rearing unit preparation, larval rearing, health management, larval nutrition and feed management, important larval diseases, general assessment of larval condition, quality testing, selection of PL for stocking, PL harvest and transportation, nursery rearing, timing of PL stocking, use of multiple species in shrimp hatcheries and documentation and record keeping. Information on the use of chemicals in shrimp hatcheries and examples of various forms for hatchery record keeping are included as Annexes.

World Shrimp Farming, 1992. Farming Freshwater Prawns Michael B. New, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2002-01-01. This manual is an up to date practical guide to the farming of Macrobrachium rosenbergii. Many of the techniques described are also applicable to the culture of other species of freshwater prawns. The principle target audience is farmers and extension workers but it is also hoped that it will be useful for aquaculture lecturers and students. After a preliminary section on the biology of freshwater prawns, the manual covers site selection for hatcheries, nurseries and grow out facilities and the management of the broodstock, hatchery nursery and grow out phases of rearing. Harvesting and post harvest handling are also covered and there are some notes on marketing freshwater prawns. The reference and bibliography section contains a list of relevant reviews as well as other manuals on general aquaculture themes such as water and soil management, topography, pond construction and simple economics. The management principles described are illustrated by photographs and drawings. The manual contains annexes on specific topics such as the production of larval feeds, size variation and stock estimation. The final annex is a glossary that lists not only the terms used in the manual itself but also those which may be found in other documents
