traditions especially translation studies and world Englishes leaving the potential underlying unity underexplored both conceptually and empirically The chapters collected in this volume aim to develop such a unified perspective by drawing on corpus data across a range of languages and language varieties with a focus on written language a neglected data source in research on multilingual contact settings The findings point to shared general characteristics across individual contact settings which result from probabilistically conditioned manifestations of the same deeper regularities constraints present in diverse language contact settings

Modality in Contact Carmelo Alessandro Basile, 2024-09-02 This book explores the evolution of modal constructions of necessity and obligation in New Englishes Focusing on Singapore English analysis of corpus data reveals lower levels of grammaticalization compared to its lexifier British English This trend is explained through the lenses of a pan statist model which considers a spectrum of forces influencing the dynamics of contact On the one hand cognitive mechanisms seem to favour the selection of less grammaticalized and more transparent variants from the lexifier On the other hand the substrate is positioned as a background force actively contributing to the selection of new material to address functional gaps in the system
