

Urban flood management in Jakarta

Case study.

This document is part of a collection of six case studies selected from the work conducted by the Technology Executive Committee (TEC) on “Good practices and lessons learned on the setup and implementation of National Systems of Innovation”. It specifically focuses on the urban flood management strategies in Jakarta.

The Summary for Policymakers of the TEC’s work presented in June 2023¹ explains that the primary objective of an innovation system is to produce, diffuse, and use innovations. To accomplish this objective, the Summary for Policymakers document identifies specific activities or functions that should be carried out to facilitate the innovation process. Based on empirical evidence, innovation studies identify seven main functions as outlined in Table 1. Evaluating to what extent an innovation system can perform these functions is necessary to identify and assess the innovation system’s achievements, failures and gaps or barriers. The functions assessment found that the functions of knowledge development and diffusion (F1), and resource mobilization (F5) are key functions to the Indonesian study case.

Table 1. Indonesian case of innovation system
