Rethinking Empathy Through Literature Routledge Interdisciplinary Perspectives On Literature:

Rethinking Empathy through Literature Meghan Marie Hammond, Sue J. Kim, 2014-07-11 In recent years a growing field of empathy studies has started to emerge from several academic disciplines including neuroscience social psychology and philosophy Because literature plays a central role in discussions of empathy across disciplines reconsidering how literature relates to feeling with others is key to rethinking empathy conceptually This collection challenges common understandings of empathy asking readers to question what it is how it works and who is capable of performing it The authors reveal the exciting research on empathy that is currently emerging from literary studies while also making productive connections to other areas of study such as psychology and neurobiology While literature has been central to discussions of empathy in divergent disciplines the ways in which literature is often thought to relate to empathy can be simplistic and or problematic The basic yet popular postulation that reading literature necessarily produces empathy and pro social moral behavior greatly underestimates the complexity of reading literature empathy morality and society Even if empathy were a simple neurological process we would still have to differentiate the many possible kinds of empathy in relation to different forms of art All the complexities of literary and cultural studies have still to be brought to bear to truly understand the dynamics of literature and empathy

Vulnerability and Security in Human Rights Literature and Visual Culture Alexandra Schultheis Moore, 2015-10-23 This book responds to the failures of human rights the way its institutions and norms reproduce geopolitical imbalances and social exclusions through an analysis of how literary and visual culture can make visible human rights claims that are foreclosed in official discourses Moore draws on theories of vulnerability precarity and dispossession to argue for the necessity of recognizing the embodied and material contexts of human rights subjects At the same time she demonstrates how these theories run the risk of reproducing the structural imbalances that lie at the core of critiques of human rights Pairing conventional human rights genres legal instruments human rights reports reportage and humanitarian campaigns with literary and visual culture Moore develops a transnational feminist reading praxis of five sites of rights and their violation over the past fifty years UN human rights instruments and child soldiers in Nigerian literature human rights reporting and novels that address state sponsored ethnocide in Zimbabwe the international humanitarian campaigns and disaster capitalism in fiction of Bhopal India the work of M decins Sans Fronti res in the Sahel Afghanistan Democratic Republic of Congo and Burma as represented in various media campaigns and in photo graphic narratives and finally the human rights campaigns fiction and film that have brought Indonesia s history of anti leftist violence into contemporary public debate These case studies underscore how human rights norms are always subject to conditions of imaginative representation and how literature and visual culture participate in that cultural imaginary Expanding feminist theories of embodied and imposed vulnerability Moore demonstrates the importance of situating human rights violations not only in the context of neo liberal development policies but also in relation to the growth of security networks that serve the nation state often at the expense of the security of specific subjects and populations In place of conventional victims and agents the intersection of vulnerability and human rights opens up readings of human rights claims and suffering that are at once embodied and shareable yet which run the risk of cooptation by security rhetoric
