Researching Children's Experiences:

Researching Children's Experience Sheila Greene, Diane Hogan, 2005-01-13 Strongly recommended as it provides a very useful overview of a range of methods mainly textual for exploring children's experiences. These accounts are placed well in the broader conceptual frameworks concerning both methodologies and ethical considerations. Educational Review. How should the researcher approach the sensitive subject of the child? What are the ethical issues involved in researching children's experiences? In essays written by a collection of key international authors, Researching Children's Experience addresses these questions and examines up-to-date methodological and conceptual approaches to researching children. This book is a practical, comprehensive and interdisciplinary guide for advanced students and researchers exploring a range of studies and the theoretical and ethical motivations behind them. The book is divided into three coherent sections: Conceptual, methodological and ethical issues in researching children's experiences; Methods for conducting research with children; The generation and analysis of text. Researching Children's Experience provides examples of how researchers from a variety of social science perspectives have set about carrying out research into children's experience. Useful to students embarking on a research project and to experienced researchers wishing to explore new methods. Greene and Hogan's book is an essential addition to anyone doing research on children. It will be especially useful to those in developmental psychology, education, nursing and other disciplines interested in studying children's experience.

Researching Children's Experiences Melissa Freeman, Sandra Mathison, 2009 This accessible book presents approaches to planning, carrying out and analyzing research projects with children and youth from a social constructivist perspective. Rich contextualized examples illustrate how to elicit and understand the lived experiences of diverse young people. Data collection methods discussed in depth include drawing, photography, the Internet, games, interviewing, focus groups, journaling and observation. Also covered are strategies for fostering the active contributions of children in the research process, navigating consent and ethical issues, enlisting the support of parents, school personnel and other gatekeepers and interpreting data. Throughout, the authors emphasize the need to attend to the social setting in which research with children is done. End-of-chapter questions and exercises encourage readers to reflect on taken-for-granted conceptions of children and childhood and to try out the book's ideas in their own research projects.

Researching Children and Childhoods Sarah Richards, Sarah Coombs, 2025-07-10 Junior researchers in the field of childhood studies are often faced with many challenges that accompany research with young participants. Methodological concepts such as research relationships, positionality, self-disclosure and reflexivity can sometimes become subordinate to more practical and procedural concerns. Researching Children and Childhoods frames these themes not as problems but as opportunities to deepen and strengthen research discussions and analysis. Providing students with a guide to support their ventures into research with children and young people, this book offers practical advice on writing a thesis/dissertation and will enable readers to confidently reflect on the ethical issues embedded in their own projects and recognise them as opportunities for discussion within their dissertations or thesis demystify the role of methodologies and position them as essential tools for their research consider the efficacy of concepts such as agency autonomy participation subjectivity and voice as ways of understanding childhood and children's lived experiences use ideas such as positionality self disclosure and category entitlement to recognise the integral role of researcher identity and relationships in the construction of knowledge use I authoritatively when writing about their own research without reducing content to descriptive opinion based discussions situate their research by exploring the context in which the research takes place and the power relations embedded within participants and researcher relationships Each chapter includes a variety of researcher experiences vignette examples and specific activities aimed at applying the key themes represented in this volume into research dissertations
