Photography in India Aileen Blaney, Chinar Shar, 2020-09-23 Photography's prominence in the representation and experience of India in contemporary and historical times has not guaranteed it a position of sustained attention in research and scholarship. For a technology as all pervasive as photography and a country as colossal as India this scenario is somewhat of an anomaly. Photography in India explores elements of the past present and future of photography in the context of India through speculation and reflection on photography as an artistic documentary and everyday practice. The perspectives of writers theorists curators and artists are selectively brought to bear upon known as well as previously unseen photographic archives together with changes in photographic practice that have been synchronous with contemporary India's rapid urban and rural transformation and the technological shift from chemistry and light to programming and algorithms. Essential reading for anyone interested in Indian photography this book binds insights into a history of photography with its contemporary development consolidating wide ranging thinking on the topic and setting the agenda for future research.

In The Internet Is Not What You Think It Is Justin Smith offers an original deep history of the internet from the ancient to the modern world uncovering its surprising origins in nature and centuries old dreams of radically improving human life by outsourcing thinking to machines and communicating across vast distances. Yet despite the internet's continuing potential Smith argues the utopian hopes behind it have finally died today killed by the harsh realities of social media the global information economy and the attention destroying nature of networked technology. Ranging over centuries of the history and philosophy of science and technology Smith shows how the internet has been with us much longer than we usually think. He draws fascinating connections between internet user experience artificial intelligence the invention of the printing press communication between trees and the origins of computing in the machine.
