The Psychology of Unseen Biases: Blindspots in the Everyday Mind DR ANU KANT MITAL, DHANASHRI RAJSHRI RAVINDRA JADHAV, AFROSE BEGUM, KRITHIKA. V, PREFACE We live in an age of unprecedented access to knowledge technology and cultural exchange Yet even with this abundance of information our decisions perceptions and interactions are often shaped less by rational thought than by hidden forces operating beneath awareness These unseen biases are subtle persistent and deeply ingrained shape how we judge others how we respond to information and how we understand ourselves The idea of this book grew out of a simple but profound observation the human mind is both extraordinary in its capacity and fragile in its judgments Cognitive shortcuts emotional impulses and social conditioning serve us well in many contexts but they also create blindspots that distort reality Whether in the courtroom the classroom the workplace or even in our closest relationships biases silently dictate choices with consequences that ripple far beyond the individual This book seeks to illuminate these blindspots It is not merely an exploration of the psychology of bias but a journey through the everyday mind how it perceives how it misjudges and how it can learn to see more clearly Drawing on research from psychology neuroscience behavioral economics and artificial intelligence the chapters move from the roots of bias to their implications in society technology and governance Each section combines theory with real world examples and case studies demonstrating that bias is not an abstract concept but a lived experience with measurable effects Importantly this book is not written in a spirit of blame To have biases is to be human they are neither signs of weakness nor evidence of moral failure Instead they are reminders of the limits of our cognition The aim here is to cultivate awareness not guilt to encourage conscious responsibility rather than denial My hope is that readers whether scholars professionals students or simply curious minds will come away with tools not only to recognize bias in themselves but also to question it in systems institutions and technologies that shape our shared world By acknowledging blindspots and striving to overcome them we move closer to building communities and organizations that are fairer more inclusive and more conscious of the human condition This book is dedicated to those willing to look inward with honesty to see what is unseen and to walk the difficult but necessary path toward clarity Authors Dr Anu Kant Mital Dhanashri Rajshri Ravindra Jadhav Afrose Begum Krithika V
