

Elementary School-Wide PBS Lesson Plans

Expectation from our Matrix:
Week of Implementation:
Specific Skill: I Can Listen Attentively
Skill Steps/Learning Targets: This means I will: - have my eyes on speaker - have my voice off - hands and feet still - listen to all information
Context: All Settings
TEACHING= Tell+ Show+ Practice+ Feedback+ Re-teach
TELL (this should be a BRIEF opener to the lesson, the lesson emphasis should be on student guided practice) This component provides an introduction to what the skill is, rationale for why we need it, and a brief discussion of what are the skill steps. What is the skill? Choose 1 of the following to introduce the skill. • State the skill: Listen attentively • Quote: "Be a good listener, your ears will never get you in trouble." – Frank Tyger • Data from school survey, SWIS, MSIP, etc. • Read a piece of literature, picture book, social story, fiction, an excerpt from a novel or an article: Dealing With Someone Who Won't Listen, by Lisa K. Adams • Activity: 1. Telephone – Be sure to stop after every so many students to check that the message is correct. We do not want students practicing the "wrong" listening skills. ☺. 2. Truth, Truth, Lie - Tell 2 things that are the truth about yourself, and one thing that is a lie. Students try to guess which thing is the truth. 3. Think, Pair, Share – During an academic subject, have students think about a concept, partner up and share their thinking with a partner. Have the partner repeat back what they heard while listening. For example: "I heard you say that you feel the Colonists were wrong in trying to break away from Britain because they needed their support to survive in America." Rationale - why would a student need to know this skill? In what school settings would a student need this skill? Also make connections to life beyond school, i.e., the workplace, home, higher education, etc. • Discussion: "Why would it be important to have good listening skills? What are some situations where listening is very important? How would listening be helpful in these situations?" • Tie listening attentively to your school expectations. Discuss Skill Steps –using the list of skill steps above, quickly review the behavioral expectation for appropriately listening attentively. • Listening attentively means we: 1) have eyes on speaker, 2) have our voice off, 3) have hands and feet still, 4) listen to all information
