Propositional Content Context And Content:

Act-Based Conceptions of Propositional Content Friederike Moltmann, Mark Textor, 2017-07-03 The notion of a propositional content plays a central role in contemporary philosophy of language Propositional content makes up both the meaning of sentences and the content of propositional attitudes such as belief One particular view about propositional content has been dominant in analytic philosophy namely the Fregean conception of propositions as abstract mind independent objects that come with truth conditions But propositions in this sense raise a range of issues which have become a center of debate in current philosophy of language In particular how should propositions as abstract objects be understood and how can they represent things and be true or false A number of philosophers in contemporary analytic philosophy as well as in early analytic philosophy and phenomenology have approached the notion of a propositional content in a different way not by starting out with an abstract truth bearer but by focusing on cognitive acts of agents such as acts of judging It is in terms of such acts that the notion of a propositional content on their view should be understood The act based perspective historically goes back to the work of Central European philosophers in particular that of Husserl Twardowski Meinong and Reinach However their work has been unduly neglected and is in fact largely inaccessible to contemporary analytic philosophers The volume presents a central selection of work of these philosophers that bear on an act based conception of philosophical content some of which in new translations one paper by Reinach some of which published in English for the very first time two papers by Twardowski In addition the volume presents new work by leading contemporary philosophers of language pursuing or discussing an act based conception of propositional content Moreover the book contains a crosslinguistic study of nominalizations for actions and products a distinction that plays a central role in the philosophy of language of Twardowski

Text, Context, Pretext H. G. Widdowson, 2008-04-15 Written by a leading researcher in the field this fascinating examination of the relations between grammar text and discourse is designed to provoke critical discussion on key issues in discourse analysis which are not always clearly identified and examined Written by a leading researcher in the field Continues the enquiry into discourse analysis that Zellig Harris initiated 50 years ago which raised a number of problematic issues that have remained unresolved ever since Introduces the notion of pretext as an additional factor in the general interpretative process Focuses attention specifically on the work of critical discourse analysis CDA in light of the issues discussed

The Architecture of Context and Context-Sensitivity Tadeusz Ciecierski, Paweł Grabarczyk, 2020-02-25 This volume addresses foundational issues of context dependence and indexicality which are at the center of the current debate within the philosophy of language Topics include the scope of context dependency the nature of content and the character of input data of cognitive processes relevant for the interpretation of utterances There is also coverage of the role of beliefs and intentions as contextual factors as well as the validity of arguments in context sensitive languages The contributions consider foundational issues regarding context sensitivity from three different yet related perspectives on the phenomenon of context dependence representational structural and functional The contributors not only address the representational structural and or functional problems separately but also study their mutual connections thus furthering the debate and bringing competing approaches closer to unification and consensus This text appeals to students and researchers within the field This is a very useful collection of essays devoted to the roles of context in the study of language Its essays provide a useful overview of the current debates on this topic and they put forth novel contributions that will undoubtedly be of relevance for the development of all areas in philosophy and linguistics interested in the notion of context Stefano Predelli Department of Philosophy University of Nottingham Nottingham UK Text, Context and Performance James A. Kapaló, 2011-09-23 This ethnographic study of Gagauz religion offers an original perspective on folk religion as discourse and object of study It is also the first monograph published in a Western language on this little known European people s history and culture Context and Coherence Una Stojnić, 2021 Natural languages are riddled with context sensitivity One and the same string of words can express many different meanings on occasion of use and yet we understand one another effortlessly on the fly How do we do so What fixes the meaning of context sensitive expressions and how are we able to recover the meaning so effortlessly This book offers a novel response we can do so because we draw on a broad array of subtle linguistic conventions that determine the interpretation of context sensitive items Contrary to the dominant tradition which maintains that the meaning of context sensitive language is underspecified by grammar and that interpretation relies on non linguistic cues and speakers intentions this book argues that meaning is determined entirely by discourse conventions rules of language that have largely been missed and the effects of which have been mistaken for extra linguistic effects of an utterance situation on meaning The linguistic account of context developed here sheds a new light on the nature of linguistic content and the interaction between content and context At the same time it provides a novel model of context that should constrain and help evaluate debates across many subfields of philosophy where appeal to context has been common often leading to surprising conclusions such as epistemology ethics value theory metaphysics metaethics and logic Propositional Content Peter Hanks, 2015-06-04 Peter Hanks defends a new theory about the nature of propositional content According to this theory the basic bearers of representational properties are particular mental or spoken actions Propositions are types of these actions which we use to classify and individuate our attitudes and speech acts Hanks abandons several key features of the traditional Fregean conception of propositional content including the idea that propositions are the primary bearers of truth conditions the distinction between content and force and the concept of entertainment The main difficulty for this traditional conception is the problem of the unity of the proposition the problem of explaining how propositions have truth conditions and other representational properties The new theory developed here in its place explains the unity of propositions and provides new
