Magnetic resonance imaging of disturbed brain connectivity in psychiatric illness Alex Fornito,Ben Harrison, The widespread application of brain imaging to the study of psychiatric disorders has led to a revolution in our understanding of the neural basis of psychiatric illness In particular the advent of magnetic resonance imaging MRI has provided an unprecedented capacity for quantifying diverse aspects of brain structure and function in vivo and has been used to identify brain changes associated with the full spectrum of psychopathology With respect to major psychiatric disorders it is now abundantly clear from this literature that focal brain dysfunction is rare Rather most disorders are associated with abnormalities in large scale networks of spatially distributed and interconnected brain regions i.e. they are disorders of brain connectivity. Such considerations highlight the need to understand brain dysfunction in psychiatric illness from a network based perspective. This goal is starting to be realized through recent advances in the use of MRI to map the brain's complex connectivity architecture. In this special edition we invite contributions that address brain network dysfunction in psychiatric illnesses. Specifically the work must be concerned with understanding interactions between brain regions and how their alterations are affected by psychiatric disease. These interactions can be studied at the level of anatomy using diffusion MRI or function using functional MRI (fMRI) with the full range of methods available e.g. tractography, seed based correlations, independent component analysis, graph analysis, dynamic causal modeling etc. Contributions can be either reviews of recent relevant literature addressing brain network dysfunction in psychiatric disease or experimental papers describing novel insights into brain network disturbances in such illnesses. Contributions will be invited covering a broad spectrum of psychiatric disease including mood and anxiety disorders, schizophrenia, autism, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder and neurodegenerative conditions. It is intended that this volume will provide important insights into how brain networks are perturbed by psychiatric disease and allow identification of commonalities and differences across diagnostic categories.
