Ottoman Rule of Law and the Modern Political Trial Avi Rubin, 2018-11-08 In 1876 a recently dethroned sultan Abd laziz was found dead in his chambers the veins in his arm slashed Five years later a group of Ottoman senior officials stood a criminal trial and were found guilty for complicity in his murder Among the defendants was the world famous statesman former Grand Vizier and reformer Ahmed Midhat Pasa a political foe of the autocratic sultan Abd lhamit II who succeeded Abd laziz and ruled the empire for thirty three years The alleged murder of the former sultan and the trial that ensued were political dramas that captivated audiences both domestically and internationally The high profile personalities involved the international politics at stake and the intense newspaper coverage all rendered the trial an historic event but the question of whether the sultan was murdered or committed suicide remains a mystery that continues to be relevant in Turkey today Drawing upon a wide range of narrative and archival sources Rubin explores the famous yet understudied trial and its representations in contemporary public discourse and subsequent historiography Through the reconstruction and analysis of various aspects of the trial Rubin identifies the emergence of a new culture of legalism that sustained the first modern political trial in the history of the Middle East investigates intermarriage and related relationships around the world since the eighteenth century. The contributors explore how romantic relationships challenged boundary crossings of various kinds: social, geographic, religious, ethnic. To this end, the volume considers a range of related issues: Who participated in these unions? How common were they and in which circumstances were they practised or banned? Taking a global view, the book also questions some of the categories behind these relationships. For example, how did geographical boundaries across national lines, distinctions between colonies and metropolises or metaphors of the East and the West shape the treatment of intermarriage? What role have social and symbolic boundaries such as presumed racial, religious or socio-economic divides played? To what extent and how were those boundaries blurred in the eyes of contemporaries? Not least, how have bureaucracies and law contributed to the creation of boundaries preventing romantic unions? Romantic relationships, the contributors suggest, brought into sharp relief assumptions not only about community and culture but also about the sanctity of the intimate sphere of love and family. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of The History of the Family.

Capitalism, Jacobinism and International Relations Eren Duzgun, 2022-06-23

This book offers a radical reinterpretation of the development of the modern world through the concept of Jacobinism. It argues that the French Revolution was not just another step in the construction of capitalist modernity but produced an alternative geo-political economy that is Jacobinism. Furthermore, Jacobinism provided a blueprint for other modernization projects, thereby profoundly impacting the content and tempo of global modernity in and beyond Europe. The book traces the journey of Jacobinism in the Ottoman Empire and Turkey. It contends that until the 1950s the Ottoman Turkish experiment with modernity was not marked by capitalism but by a historically specific Jacobinism. Asserting this Jacobin legacy then leads to a novel interpretation of the subsequent transition to and authoritarian consolidation of capitalism in contemporary Turkey. As such, by tracing the world historical trajectory of Jacobinism, the book establishes a new way of understanding the origins and development of global modernity.
