World Population Policies, 2009 Community Nutrition for Developing Countries Norman J. Temple, Nelia Steyn, 2016-03-31 Nutrition textbooks used by universities and colleges in developing countries have very often been written by scholars who live and work in North America or the United Kingdom And while the research and information they present is sound the nutrition related health challenges with which developing countries must grapple differ considerably from those found in highly industrialized Western nations The primary aim of Community Nutrition for Developing Countries is to provide a book that meets the needs of nutritionists and other health professionals living and working in developing countries Written by both scholars and practitioners the volume draws on their wealth of knowledge experience and understanding of nutrition in developing countries to provide nutrition professionals with all the information they require Each chapter addresses a specific nutrition challenge currently faced by developing countries such as food security food safety disease prevention maternal health and effective nutrition policy In addition the volume serves as an invaluable resource for those developing and implementing nutrition education programmes With an emphasis on nutritional education as a means to prevent disease and effectively manage health disorders it is the hope of the nearly three dozen contributors to this work that it will enhance the health and well being of low income populations throughout the world

Aging and Mental Health Daniel L. Segal, Sara Honn Qualls, Michael A. Smyer, 2018-01-18 Fully updated and revised this new edition of a highly successful text provides students clinicians and academics with a thorough introduction to aging and mental health The third edition of Aging and Mental Health is filled with new updates and features including the impact of the DSM 5 on diagnosis and treatment of older adults Like its predecessors it uses case examples to introduce readers to the field of aging and mental health It also provides both a synopsis of basic gerontology needed for clinical work with older adults and an analysis of several facets of aging well Introductory chapters are followed by a series of chapters that describe the major theoretical models used to understand mental health and mental disorders among older adults Following entries are devoted to the major forms of mental disorders in later life with a focus on diagnosis assessment and treatment issues Finally the book focuses on the settings and contexts of professional mental health practice and on emerging policy issues that affect research and practice This combination of theory and practice helps readers conceptualize mental health problems in later life and negotiate the complex decisions involved with the assessment and treatment of those problems Features new material on important topics including positive mental health hoarding disorder chronic pain housing caregiving and ethical and legal concerns Substantially revised and updated throughout including reference to the DSM 5 Offers chapter end recommendations of websites for further information Includes discussion questions and critical thinking questions at the end of each chapter Aging and Mental Health Third Edition is an ideal text for advanced undergraduate and graduate students in psychology for service providers in psychology psychiatry social work and counseling and for clinicians who are experienced mental health service providers but who have not had much experience working specifically with older adults and their families

Climate Change and Human Health Scenario in South and Southeast Asia Rais Akhtar, 2016-04-20 This book is the first to present a regional analysis of climate change and human health focusing on geographically and socio economically distinct countries of South and Southeast Asia It has a major focus on India Indonesia Bangladesh Malaysia Thailand Nepal and Taiwan Climate change is a significant and emerging threat to human health It represents a range of environmental hazards and will affect populations in both the developed and developing countries In particular it affects the regions where the current burden of climate sensitive diseases are high which is the case in South and Southeast Asian countries

Managing Openness Mona Haddad, Ben Shepherd, 2011 The global financial crisis triggered a broad reassessment of economic integration policies in developed and developing countries worldwide The crisis induced collapse in trade was the sharpest ever since World War II affecting all countries and all product categories A huge shock to the trading system combined with severe macroeconomic instability makes it natural for policymakers to call into question the basic underlying assumptions of trade liberalization and openness In particular outward oriented or export led growth strategies are being reassessed as openness is increasingly associated with greater volatility However it is crucial not to lose sight of the dynamic benefits that openness can offer Examples include technology transfer increased competitive pressure that reduces markups and improves efficiency and economies of scale The real question is how to manage outward oriented strategies so as to maximize the benefits of openness while minimizing risks This book aims to contribute to this important and ongoing policy debate bringing together recent empirical work on the trade collapse its causes and consequences and the broader trade policy agenda in the post crisis environment It addresses critical policy issues revolving around the topic of outward oriented growth strategy including policy instruments that help manage risks associated with outward orientation lessons learned from the crisis for particular countries and regions and how emerging trade policy issues such as climate change commodities global production networking and migration affect the prospects for recovery and outward oriented growth

Agent-Based Modelling in Population Studies André Grow, Jan Van Bavel, 2016-08-11 This book examines the use of agent based modelling ABM in population studies from concepts to applications best practices to future developments It features papers written by leading experts in the field that will help readers to better understand the usefulness of ABM for population projections how ABM can be injected with empirical data to achieve a better match between model and reality how geographic information can be fruitfully used in ABM and how ABM results can be reported effectively and correctly Coverage ranges from detailing the relation between ABM and existing paradigms in population studies to infusing agent based models with empirical data The papers show the benefits that ABM offers the field including enhanced theory formation by better linking the micro level with the macro level the ability to represent populations more adequately as complex systems and the possibility to study rare events and the implications of alternative mechanisms in artificial laboratories In addition readers will discover guidelines and best practices with detailed examples of how to apply agent based models in different areas of population research including human mating behaviour migration and socio structural determinants of health behaviours Earlier versions of the papers in this book have been presented at the workshop Recent

Developments and Future Directions in Agent Based Modelling in Population Studies which took place at the University of Leuven KU Leuven Belgium in September 2014 The book will contribute to the development of best practices in the field and will provide a solid point of reference for scholars who want to start using agent based modelling in their own research

Consumer Vulnerability Susan Dunnett, Kathy Hamilton, Maria Piacentini, 2018-10-18 This book demonstrates that marketing scholarship has much to contribute to our understanding of consumer vulnerability and potential solutions It brings to the fore ways in which so called vulnerable consumers navigate various marketplace and service interactions and develop specific consumer skills in order to empower themselves in such exchanges It does so by exploring how consumer vulnerability is experienced across a range of different contexts such as poverty and disability and the potential impact of vulnerability from childhood to old age Other chapters extend focus from the consumer to the organisational perspective or consider more macro issues such as socio spatial disadvantages The fundamental aim of many of the contributors is to produce work that can benefit individual and societal well being They draw on various methodological approaches that generate both marketing management and policy focused implications A series of commentaries are also included to stimulate critical reflection and new insights into consumer vulnerability This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Marketing Management
