History of Acquisition in the Department of Defense, Volume 1 Elliott V. Converse,2012-06-12 This volume is a history of the acquisition of major weapon systems by the United States armed forces from 1945 to 1960 the decade and a half that spanned the Truman and Eisenhower administrations following World War II These instruments of warfare aircraft armored vehicles artillery guided missiles naval vessels and supporting electronic systems when combined with nuclear warheads gave the postwar American military unprecedented deterrent and striking power 1 They were also enormously expensive The volume is organized chronologically with individual chapters addressing the roles of OSD the Army Navy and Air Force in two distinct periods The first roughly coinciding with President Truman s tenure covers the years from the end of World War II through the end of the Korean War in 1953 The second spans the two terms of the Eisenhower presidency from 1953 through early 1961 The year 1953 marked a natural breakpoint between the two periods The Korean War had ended President Eisenhower and his defense team began implementing the New Look a policy and strategy based on nuclear weapons which they believed would provide security and make it possible to reduce military spending The New Look s stress on nuclear weapons along with the deployment of the first operational guided missiles and the rapid advances subsequently made in nuclear and missile technology profoundly influenced acquisition in the services throughout the 1950s and the remainder of the century As used in this study the term acquisition encompasses the activities by which the United States obtains weapons and other equipment In surveying the history of acquisition between 1945 and 1960 this study discusses or refers in passing to many of the hundreds of weapon system programs initiated by the services in that period but it is not a weapons encyclopedia Instead it investigates a few major programs in depth in the belief that such detailed examination best reveals the evolution of acquisition policies organizations and processes and the various forces influencing weapons programs Health Committee League of Nations,1930 Scientific and Technical Aerospace Reports ,1992

Particle-accelerator Decommissioning J. H. Opelka,J.M. Peterson,G.J. Marmer,R.L. Mundis,B. Siskind,M.J. Kikta,1979 Generic considerations involved in decommissioning particle accelerators are examined There are presently several hundred accelerators operating in the United States that can produce material containing nonnegligible residual radioactivity Residual radioactivity after final shutdown is generally short lived induced activity and is localized in hot spots around the beam line The decommissioning options addressed are mothballing entombment dismantlement with interim storage and dismantlement with disposal The recycle of components or entire accelerators following dismantlement is a definite possibility and has occurred in the past Accelerator components can be recycled either immediately at accelerator shutdown or following a period of storage depending on the nature of induced activation Considerations of cost radioactive waste and radiological health are presented for four prototypic accelerators Prototypes considered range from small accelerators having minimal amounts of radioactive material to a very large accelerator having massive components containing nonnegligible amounts of induced activation Archival information on past decommissionings is presented and recommendations concerning regulations and accelerator design that will aid in the decommissioning of an accelerator are given 30 Years Of Bes Physics - Proceedings Of The Symposium On 30 Years Of Bes Physics Minghan
