

Figure 6-23:

Top: The areas you point in Quick Mask mode turn red, as shown here. This mode is one of the fastest ways to make a selection, and you don't have to be that careful about the area you point; anything you touch with the brush is protected. Once you exit Quick Mask mode and flip-flop your selection, click the "Save selection as channel" button at the bottom of the Channels panel (circled here).

Middle: Once you've activated the Content-Aware Scale tool, you can choose your protective alpha channel from the Protect pop-up menu in the Options bar (circled).

Bottom: Because you protected the tall grass and the man, Photoshop has left them alone and resized everything else.

6. Tell Photoshop you want to resize your image by choosing Edit → Content-Aware Scale or pressing ⌘-Option-Shift-C (Ctrl+Alt+Shift+C on a PC).

Photoshop puts white, square resizing handles all around your image; but don't grab any of the handles just yet!

7. From the Options bar's Protect pop-up menu, choose Alpha 1 (Figure 6-25, middle).

Choosing the alpha channel you've already created shows Photoshop which areas you want to protect. If your image contains people, you can preserve their skin tones by clicking the little stick-person icon to the right of the Protect menu.
