1950s leading American scientists embarked on an unprecedented project to remake high school science education

Dissatisfaction with the soft school curriculum of the time advocated by the professional education establishment and concern over the growing technological sophistication of the Soviet Union led government officials to encourage a handful of elite research scientists fresh from their World War II successes to revitalize the nations science curricula In Scientists in the Classroom John L Rudolph argues that the Cold War environment long neglected in the history of education literature is crucial to understanding both the reasons for the public acceptance of scientific authority in the field of education and the nature of the curriculum materials that were eventually produced Drawing on a wealth of previously untapped resources from government and university archives Rudolph focuses on the National Science Foundation supported curriculum projects initiated in 1956 What the historical record reveals according to Rudolph is that these materials were designed not just to improve American science education but to advance the professional interest of the American scientific community in the postwar period as well

Design and Spirituality Stuart Walker,2020-12-30 Design and Spirituality examines the philosophical context of our current situation and its implications for design It explores how modernity and our constricted notions of progress have contributed to today s crisis of values and argues for a re establishment and re affirmation of self transcending priorities together with an ethos of moderation and sufficiency A wide range of topics are covered including material culture and spiritual teachings sustainability and the spiritual perspective traditional and indigenous knowledge technology and spirituality notions of meaningful design and how particular material things can have deeper symbolic significance There are also reflections on areas such as the language of design busyness and its relationship to wisdom design and social disparity and traditional sacred practices While not avoiding issues that are controversial and sometimes hard hitting Design and Spirituality gets to the heart of the key issues affecting us today and presents them in a highly readable and accessible format The author is a leading thinker in the field and he presents his arguments in a manner that invites the reader to reflect and think about where we are going why we are going there and what really matters Podcasts <https://www.jesuit.ie/podcasts/the-spiritual-dimension-of-design> <https://newbooksnetwork.com/design-and-spirituality>
