Handbook of Modern Sensors Jacob Fraden, 2006-04-29 Seven years have passed since the publication of the previous edition of this book During that time sensor technologies have made a remarkable leap forward The sensitivity of the sensors became higher the dimensions became smaller the sensitivity became better and the prices became lower What have not changed are the fundamental principles of the sensor design They are still governed by the laws of Nature Arguably one of the greatest geniuses who ever lived Leonardo Da Vinci had his own peculiar way of praying He was saying Oh Lord thanks for Thou do not violate your own laws It is comforting indeed that the laws of Nature do not change as time goes by it is just our appreciation of them that is being renewed Thus this new edition examines the same good old laws of Nature that are employed in the designs of various sensors This has not changed much since the previous edition Yet the sections that describe the practical designs are revised substantially Recent ideas and developments have been added and less important and nonessential designs were dropped Probably the most dramatic recent progress in the sensor technologies relates to wide use of MEMS and MEOMS micro electro mechanical systems and micro electro opto mechanical systems These are examined in this new edition with greater detail This book is about devices commonly called sensors The invention of a coprocessor has brought highly sophisticated instruments into our everyday lives

Development of High-temperature Strain Gages J. W. Pitts, Dwight Garrison Moore, 1961 A summary is presented of a research program aimed at the improvement of high temperature strain gages of the electrical resistance type Potential ceramic and metal components were evaluated and a gage was devised that was based on these evaluations This gage NBS 5B was flexible and easy to install however it lacked resistance stability at higher temperatures In an attempt to minimize this deficiency ceramic cements were developed that showed greater electrical resistivity than had been previously observed in the range 800 to 1800 degrees Fahrenheit also a technique was devised for increasing the resistance to ground by applying a fired on ceramic coating to the grid of a specifically developed unbacked gage A study was made of the cause of the erratic response of cemented gages that had not been preheated prior to use There were strong indications that the erratic response was caused mostly by the rapid decrease in resistance that accompanied structural changes in the cement
