

Notan occurs when the negative space is sufficiently enclosed by the format to produce a shape that the eye and mind can grasp.

65 When pressure is applied to both ends of a straight line, it bounces up into a zigzag.

67 A straight line above the zigzag forces us to feel the up-and-down movement of the line.

68 When the bottom part of the zigzag is filled in, it becomes a series of black triangles reaching up. When a line is placed above these points, we suddenly see a series of white triangles or points reaching down. The exchange is Notan.

69 We can see this design several ways: a series of white diamonds, white triangles, or black saw teeth about to reach. But if we see the bottom triangles as reflections of the upper, we immediately sense a white horizontal line running between them.

64 Is this not the white lines or cord are the positive or "real" while the black spaces are the negative or "dream?"

66 Here a kind of net pattern is made of the negative white spaces between black paper rectangles. The reverse of the net above.

A second criteria of Notan is its reversibility.

A third characteristic of Notan is that the shapes in the design have an exchange value.

65 This design is actually made up of black strips, but when placed close together, the effect is of three decorative white strips on a black background.

64 The black strips here are identical with those used in the illustration above, only now they have been placed so far apart that they seem isolated against a white background.

62 The spacing of the black strips depends upon making the white spaces equally strong and decorative as that, if we wish, we can see them as positive pattern.

Art Subjects Howard Singerman, 1999-03-31 Few sites within the university open a richer critical reflection than that of the M F A with its complex crossing of professionalism theory humanistic knowledge and the absolute exposure of practice Howard Singerman s Art Subjects does a magnificent job of both laying out our current crises letting us see the shards of past practices embedded in them and of demonstrating rendering urgent and discussable what it now means either to assume or award the name of the artist Stephen Melville author of Seams editor of Vision and Textuality Art Subjects is a must read for anyone interested in both the education and status of the visual artist in America With careful attention to detail and nuance Singerman presents a compelling picture of the peculiarly institutional myth of the creative artist as an untaught and unteachable being singularly well adapted to earn a tenure position at a major research university A fascinating study thoroughly researched yet oddly and movingly personal Thomas Lawson Dean Art School CalArts

Introduction to Design Alan Pipes, 2004 From the author of Production for Graphic Designers 3e this book provides an engaging introduction to the fundamentals of art and design With a wide range of illustrations Alan Pipes demonstrates in Part 1 Elements how an artist or designer fills a blank canvas nothingness with points lines shapes textures and colors in order to create a sense of space time and motion Part 2 Rules reveals how to develop unity and harmony balance scale and proportion contrast and emphasis and rhythm all in the quest for a satisfying illusion In addition the author demonstrates his formidable knowledge of computer aided art and design supplementing it with his own color or black white diagrams This book is ideal for students embarking on courses in graphic design fine art and illustration as well as allied courses in interior design fashion design textile design industrial design product design and printmaking Hidden in Plain Sight Eviatar Zerubavel, 2015 Many of us take for granted that what we perceive is a completely accurate representation of the world around us Yet we have all had the experience of suddenly realizing that the keys or glasses that we had been looking for in vain were right in front of us the whole time The capacity of our sense organs far exceeds our mental capabilities and as such looking at something does not guarantee that we will notice it Our minds constantly prioritize and organize the information we take in bringing certain things to the foreground while letting others that which we deem irrelevant recede into the background What ultimately determines what we perceive and what we do not In this fascinating book noted sociologist Eviatar Zerubavel argues that we perceive things not just as human beings but as social beings Drawing on fascinating examples from science the art world optical illusions and all walks of life he shows that what we notice or ignore varies across cultures and throughout history and illustrates how our environment and our social lives everything from our lifestyles to our professions to our nationalities play a role in determining how we actually use our senses to access the world A subtle yet powerful examination of one of the central features of our conscious life this book offers a way to think about all that might otherwise remain hidden in plain sight
