Psychology in Africa (Psychology Revivals) Mallery Wober, 2014-06-17 It is now well over a hundred and fifty years since the first celebrated geographical explorations of Africa took place. However, it was many years before there began quests of a different kind: the investigation of behaviour, personality, attitude, and ability among Africa's people. Originally published in 1975, this book is an account of that work: the first explorations in Africa of psychology. In an exhaustive and well-documented report, the author, a psychologist who had himself done research in Nigeria, Uganda, and who had lectured at Makerere University, drew together the main threads of the research carried out so far, putting the issues in an African perspective but anchoring them firmly within the framework of modern psychological thinking and technique of the time. Are there any common personality and intellectual characteristics among Africans? How does weaning affect African child development? How have Africans' feelings developed about city life and industrial work? The questions the author considers range from the broad-based to the specific. The challenges which lay ahead for African investigators, then moving into the mainstream of the work, are also discussed. But perhaps above all, the book made a convincing case for psychology becoming a relevant and finely honed discipline in Black Africa, characterised by practical application to Black African society. Each chapter covers a defined area of modern psychology of the time and presents a comprehensive survey in a language no more technical than the subject warrants. At the time, it was felt this book would be invaluable to students of Africa secondary education whose course included a psychology component, and to African students beginning a degree course in psychology. It would also have provided an informative supplement to courses in medicine, development studies, political science, sociology, and anthropology.

Acquiring Culture (Psychology Revivals) Gustav Jahoda, Ioan Lewis, 2015-03-27 Until the 70s and 80s anthropologists studying different cultures had mainly confined themselves to the behaviour and idea systems of adults Psychologists on the other hand working mainly in Europe and America had studied child development in their own settings and simply assumed the universality of their findings Thus both disciplines had largely ignored a crucial problem area the way in which children from birth onwards learn to become competent members of their culture This process which has been called the quintessential human adaptation constitutes the theme of this volume originally published in 1988 It derives from a workshop held at the London School of Economics which brought together fieldworkers who in their studies had paid more than usual attention to children in their cultures Their experience and foci of interest were varied but this very diversity serves to illuminate different facets of the acquisition of culture by children ranging in age from pre verbal infants to adolescents Evolutionarily primed for culture learning children are responsive to a rich web of influences from subtle and indirect as in their music and dance to direct teaching in the family guided by culture specific ideas about child psychology Some of the salient things they learn relate to gender status and power critical for the functioning of all societies The introductory essay provides the necessary historical background of the development of child study in both anthropology and psychology and outlined how future research in the ethnography of childhood should proceed The book concludes with an annotated bibliography providing a guide to the literature from 1970 onwards

Intelligence and Cultural Environment

(Psychology Revivals) Philip E. Vernon, 2014-01-27 Originally published in 1969 Intelligence and Cultural Environment looks at the concept of intelligence and the factors influencing the mental development of children including health and nutrition as well as child rearing practices It goes on to discuss the application of intelligence tests in non Western countries and includes both British and cross cultural studies to illustrate this Inevitably a product of the time in which it was written this book nonetheless makes a valuable contribution to intelligence theory as we know it today

Race and Culture in

Psychiatry (Psychology Revivals) Suman Fernando, 2014-10-14 As psychiatry has developed it has proved to be susceptible to the influence of contemporary social and political mores With its origins in nineteenth century Europe psychiatry evolved as an ethnocentric body of knowledge the vehicle of implicit and overt racism Originally published in 1988 this author however saw no reason why the contemporary psychiatrist should not challenge this ethnocentrism He provides a critical account of the development of psychiatry in relation to its cultural context and then examined contemporary practice of the time in the light of this development Throughout the book is informed by an awareness of issues of race and culture and of their difficult interactions the author emphasising both the frequency of racist attitudes and the very real cultural distinctions in our society distinctions that can be used to mask what are actually racist sentiments What emerges is not just a plea for an anti racist culture sensitive psychiatry but a blueprint for how this can be brought about He argued that the shift towards community work and social psychiatry could reorientate the profession by confronting it with its social setting and responsibilities This book represented a significant contribution to this literature for all mental health professionals and social scientists with an interest in this field at the time the author has gone on to write many more

Cognitive Styles in

Infancy and Early Childhood (Psychology Revivals) Nathan Kogan, 2013-09-13 Originally published in 1976 here is a comprehensive account of the role of cognitive styles in early childhood The author considers the possible precursors of these styles in infancy and offers a new classification scheme that helps to clarify the relation of cognitive styles to ability and intelligence In separate chapters field independence dependence reflection impulsivity breadth of categorization and styles of conceptualization are examined along with a chapter on the interrelationships between these styles The final chapter integrates and critically summarizes the significance of cognitive styles during the early years of life Throughout the volume the author attempts to link cognitive styles with other theoretical constructs for example unilinear versus multilinear models of development Inhelder and Piaget s studies of classification stages and finally the author advances a set of seven conclusions to reflect the contemporary state of knowledge in regard to the character and function of cognitive styles during the early years of life This volume provides information about the beginnings of cognitive styles in infancy and the course of their development in preschool years Research is examined both from the viewpoint of developmental change and individual differences among children The role of sex differences in cognitive styles is thoroughly examined and contrary to earlier claims of no difference the author convincingly demonstrates that females manifest clear cut superiority across a wide band of cognitive functions during the pre school years

Pictures at an Exhibition (Psychology Revivals) Andrea Gilroy, Tessa Dalley, 2014-03-05 Originally published in 1989 Pictures at an Exhibition brings together a rich collection of essays representing the diversity of views and approaches among professionals towards art and psychoanalysis and art therapy The editors both of whom are practising art therapists and art therapy educators have arranged the contributions so that they may be read in a way similar to looking at pictures in a gallery they can be glanced at briefly or lingered over read consecutively or dipped into at random Artists art therapists psychotherapists psychiatrists and art historians will all find something of interest and something to stimulate thought and discussion Contributions include innovative papers on the relationship between artists lives and the subject matter of their work the work of Kandinsky Picasso Magritte Moore Lear and Genet is looked at in particular Generously illustrated the book also highlights the importance of language and culture in attempting to understand imagery Each contribution is linked by editorial comments drawing together the threads of concern which are common to art and psychiatry

The Social Psychology of Social Movements (Psychology Revivals) Hans Toch, 2013-11-26 The social movements that Professor Toch examines in this book originally published in 1966 range from the Black Muslims to food faddists and the founders of these movements range from Hitler to Joan of Arc Why do people join social movements How do such movements serve the needs of their members and what unique social problems do they cause What are the typical consequences of membership What gives rise to social movements and how can we evaluate them In The Social Psychology of Social Movements Hans Toch provides answers to these questions It is impossible to avoid in a study of this sort the universal human implications of social movements the latent tragedy and despair which involvement in such collective action implies The humour adversity and pathos is equally evident in many of the examples which Professor Toch describes But he provides a sympathetic objectivity and is at pains to provide a systematic psychological survey of large ideologically orientated groups and their members in general

A Century of Psychology (Psychology Revivals) Ray Fuller, Patricia Noonan Walsh, Patrick McGinley, 2013-10-31 Psychology has influence in almost every walk of life Originally published in 1997 A Century of Psychology is a review of where the discipline came from where it had reached and where the editors anticipated it may go Ray Fuller Patricia Noonan Walsh and Patrick McGinley assembled an internationally recognised team of mainly European experts from the major applications and research areas of psychology They begin with a critical review of methodology and its limitations and plot the course of gender and developmental psychology They go on to include discussion of learning intellectual disability clinical psychology and the emergence of psychotherapy educational psychology organizational psychology cognitive psychology neuropsychology and many other topics in particular community psychology perception and alternative medicine Enlightening reflective and sometimes provocative A Century of Psychology is required reading for anyone involved in psychology as a practitioner researcher or teacher It is also a lively introduction for those new to the discipline
