of seeing by comparing satellite produced maps of the world's twenty largest cities With Bosselmann's guidance we begin to understand the key elements of urban design Using Copenhagen Denmark as an example he teaches us to observe without prejudice or bias He demonstrates how cities transform by introducing the idea of urban morphology through an examination of more than a century of transformations in downtown Oakland California We learn how to measure quality of life parameters that are often considered immeasurable including vitality livability and belonging Utilizing the street grids of San Francisco as examples Bosselmann explains how to define urban spaces Modeling he reveals is not so much about creating models as it is about bringing others into public democratic discussions Finally we find out how to interpret essential aspects of life and place by evaluating aerial images of the San Francisco Bay Area taken in 1962 and those taken forty three years later Bosselmann has a unique understanding of cities and how they work His hope is that with the fresh vision he offers readers will be empowered to offer inventive new solutions to familiar urban problems Self and Identity Yoshihisa

Kashima, Margaret Foddy, Michael Platow, 2002-04-01 This edited volume outlines the latest meta theoretical and theoretical contexts of self research Self and Identity examines theoretical accounts of human experience within the contemporary socio cultural milieu and attempts to answer the question of what it means to be human It provides a clear structure within which to conceptualize contemporary empirical research on self and identity in terms of personal social and symbolic aspects In so doing it identifies the symbolic aspect as an emerging area of contemporary significance Featuring contributions from a distinguished group of scholars and therapists the book is organized into four parts The editors provide section introductions to demonstrate how each chapter relates to the book's overall theme as well as how the chapter authors responded to the editors charge to go beyond the social cognitive theory of the self Part I describes the current meta theoretical context of self research the editors interpretation of the social cognitive approach to the self and an emerging alternative theory the Connectionist Approach Part II highlights personal perspectives on selfhood Part III focuses on social perspectives and Part IV reviews symbolic processes The concluding chapter reviews the book's major themes with overlapping themes and intellectual disputes The book is intended for graduate students and researchers in social and personality psychology interested in self and identity and self research It may also be used as a supplemental text in advanced level courses on self and identity

Selfscapes, Selfhoods, and Subjectivities Douglas Hollan, 2025-11-19 This book explores cross cultural similarities and differences of human subjectivity and selfhood through the concept of selfscapes Utilizing an ethnographic and person centered approach to the study of human subjectivity Selfscapes Selfhoods and Subjectivities demonstrates that autopoietic processes are informed by the constraints of a social and material ecology acting on a particular person and by how that person is remembering and habitually responding to that history of engagement with the world While the constitution of social and historical circumstance and individual reactivity and memory is universal the way an autopoietic process unfolds within any given social ecology will vary sometimes greatly from person to person Drawing on a broad theoretical base this book is essential reading for anthropologists psychoanalysts social psychologists and anyone seeking to understand the varieties and particularities of human subjectivity and selfhood
