Rationalist Bias in Communication Theory Shedletsky, Leonard,2021-06-04 While communication theory has not recognized the implications of the social intuitionist model psychologists have gathered an impressive body of evidence to support the theory In social cognition research there was the idea that human inferential processes are conscious rational logical and accurate and this belief continues somewhat in the behavioral sciences although there is evidence that it is incorrect A fresh examination is needed on just how these inferences by the receiver and the implications by the sender carried out at high speed impact our understanding of the communication process Simply put until now the default case in communication theory is the belief that we consciously reason and then we act However that may not be entirely true Rationalist Bias in Communication Theory applies social intuition theory to human communication This book explores how research has missed accounting for a critical fact about human communication in the theories of communication namely that we as humans can respond to one another and to all kinds of stimuli faster than we can deliberate By applying intuitive cognition to communication a new light can be shed on the communication process which is what the chapters prove and discuss This book is valuable for social scientists practitioners researchers academicians and students interested in new theories in communication theory

Conflict Resolution Beyond the Realist Paradigm Philip Gamaghelyan,2017-09-26 Conflict Resolution holds the promise of freeing approaches and policies with regard to politics of identity from the fatalistic grip of realism While the conceptual literature on identity and conflicts has moved in this alternative direction conflict resolution practice continues to rely on realist frames and acts as an unwanted auxiliary to traditional international relations Perpetuation of conflict discourses marginalization and exclusion of affected populations are widespread They are caused by the overreliance of conflict resolution practice on the binary frames of classic IR paradigms and also by the competitive and hierarchical relationships within the field Philip Gamaghelyan relies on participatory action research and collective autoethnography to expose patterns of exclusion and marginalization as well as the paradoxical reproduction of conflict promoting frames in current conflict resolution practice applied to the Nagorno Karabakh and Syrian crises He builds on the work of postmodernist scholars on reflective practice and on discourse analysis to explore alternative and inclusive strategies with a transformative potential The IR discipline that has dominated policymaking is only one possible lens and often a deficient one for defining preventing or resolving contemporary conflicts wrapped in identity politics Other conceptual frameworks can help to rethink our understanding of identity and conflicts and reconstruct them as performative and not static phenomena These transformative frameworks are increasingly influential in the conflict resolution field and can be applied to policymaking
