Cinema, Philosophy, Bergman Paisley Livingston, 2009-07-02 The increasingly popular idea that cinematic fictions can do philosophy raises some difficult questions Who is actually doing the philosophizing Is it the philosophical commentator who reads general arguments or theories into the stories conveyed by a film Could it be the film maker or a group of collaborating film makers who raise and try to answer philosophical questions with a film Is there something about the experience of films that is especially suited to the stimulation of worthwhile philosophical reflections In the first part of this book Paisley Livingston surveys positions and arguments surrounding the cinema s philosophical value He raises criticisms of bold theses in this area and defends a moderate view of film s possible contributions to philosophy In the second part of the book he defends an intentionalist approach that focuses on the film makers philosophical background assumptions sources and aims Livingston outlines intentionalist interpretative principles as well as an account of authorship in cinema The third part of the book exemplifies this intentionalist approach with reference to the work of Ingmar Bergman Livingston explores the connection between Bergman s work and the Swedish director s primary philosophical source a treatise in philosophical psychology authored by the Finnish philosopher Eino Kaila Bergman proclaimed that reading this book was a tremendous philosophical experience for him and that he built on this ground With reference to materials in the newly created Ingmar Bergman archive Livingston shows how Bergman took up Kaila s topics in his cinematic explorations of motivated irrationality inauthenticity and the problem of self knowledge
