Family Medicine J. L. Buckingham, E. P. Donatelle, W. E. Jacott, M. G. Rosen, Robert B. Taylor, 2013-06-29 JOHN S MILLIS In 1966 the Citizens Commission on Graduate Medical Education observed that the explosive growth in biomedical science and the consequent increase in medical skill and technology of the twentieth century had made it possible for physicians to respond to the episodes of illness of patients with an ever increasing effectiveness but that the increase in knowledge and technology had forced most physicians to concentrate upon a disease

entity an organ or organ system or a particular mode of diagnosis or therapy As a result there had been a growing lack of continuing and comprehensive patient care The Commission expressed the opinion that Now in order to bring medicine's enhanced diagnostic and therapeutic powers fully to the benefit of society it is necessary to have many physicians who can put medicine together again The Commission proceeded to recommend the education and training of substantial numbers of Primary Physicians who would by assuming primary responsibility for the patient's welfare in sickness and in health provide continuing and comprehensive health care to the citizens of the United States In 1978 it is clear that the recommendation has been accepted by the public the medical profession and medical education There has been a vigorous response in the development of family medicine and in the fields of internal medicine pediatrics and obstetrics One is particularly impressed by the wide acceptance on the part of medical students of the concept of the primary physician Dr John S Ethical Issues in Neurology James L. Bernat, 2008 Written by an eminent authority from the American Academy of Neurology's Committee on Ethics Law and Humanities this book is an excellent text for all clinicians interested in ethical decision making The book features outstanding presentations on dying and palliative care physician assisted suicide and voluntary active euthanasia medical futility and the relationship between ethics and the law New chapters in this edition discuss how clinicians resolve ethical dilemmas in practice and explore ethical issues in neuroscience research Other highlights include updated material on palliative sedation advance directives ICU withdrawal of life sustaining therapy gene therapy the very low birth weight premature infant the developmentally disabled patient informed consent organizational ethics brain death controversies and fMRI and PET studies relating to persistent vegetative state Principles of Clinical Practice Mark B. Mengel, 2013-11-11 As we move into the 21st century it is becoming increasingly difficult to offer appropriate introductory clinical experiences for medical students Many schools offer clinical experiences in the first year of medical school when the learner has little background in the traditions and origins of the doctor patient interaction Others begin this process in the second year after a professional language base has been established but concise educational materials are scarce that integrate the meaning of the privileged clinical encounter with the process and content of interviewing and examining patients In the tertiary hospitals where most medical schools are based the educators must provide an orientation to the clinical encounter an intensely personal experience in the midst of glittering technological marvels that easily distract both the novice physician and the wizened teacher Understanding the context and historical basis for the privilege of interviewing and examining another person about intimate matters relating to health and disease is essential to this process Considering these factors this textbook is written to assist medical educators and medical students involved in early clinical training As the demand for high tech medicine has accelerated so has the public concern over the loss of high touch or compassionate humane interactions with physicians Physicians are perceived as more concerned with readouts from machines and fiberoptic views of the patient than with understanding and caring about the people we have labeled as patients
