Resolving Complaints For Professionals In Health Care:

Resolving Complaints for Professionals in Health Care Wendy Leebov, Wendy Leebov Ed D, 2012-10-22 Service recovery and hospital complaint handling are not a favorite subject among healthcare employees Yet if we learn to reframe complaints we can embrace them as a second chance to make things right for the people we serve And the fact is every employee is the first point of contact for one complaint or another Ideally every person in your organization should be adept at handling complaints so they can nip complaints in the bud This booklet is a straightforward guide to handling complaints effectively Designed for the frontline employee it explores the basics of identifying the problem listening exploring options following through and getting the right people involved This is a great tool for managers and educators to use with staff to develop positive attitudes and concrete skills for turning dissatisfaction into satisfaction through effective communication

Feeding Back? Learning from Complaints Handling in Health and Social Care Great Britain. National Audit Office, 2008 There are currently two separate statutory processes for handling complaints about health and social care services NHS organisations are accountable to the Department of Health and social care services are accountable through their local authority whilst adult social care rests with the Department There are differences in the numbers of stages and timescales involved and in the arrangements for advocacy support and independent investigation The Health Service Ombudsman is responsible for the ultimate review and decision on NHS complaints and the Local Government Ombudsman for social care complaints The NAO is this report HCP 853 session 2007 08 has undertaken an evaluation of existing performance capability capacity and costs of complaints handling in both health and adult social care The NAO has set out a number of findings and recommendations including that where people are dissatisfied there is a low number who make formal complaints that navigating the complaints systems is not straightforward particularly for health service users only a small proportion of NHS complainants are aware or receive national advocacy support that the culture and attitudes of the organisations are often a barrier to responsive complaint handling neither the health or social care organisations know the cost of complaints handling that pursuing a complaint requires considerable time determination and resilience
