Dynamic General Equilibrium Modeling Burkhard Heer, Alfred Maussner, 2011-10-20 Modern business cycle theory and growth theory uses stochastic dynamic general equilibrium models. In order to solve these models economists need to use many mathematical tools. This book presents various methods in order to compute the dynamics of general equilibrium models. In part I the representative agent stochastic growth model is solved with the help of value function iteration, linear and linear quadratic approximation methods, parameterised expectations and projection methods. In order to apply these methods fundamentals from numerical analysis are reviewed in detail. In particular the book discusses issues that are often neglected in existing work on computational methods, e.g. how to find a good initial value. In part II the authors discuss methods in order to solve heterogeneous agent economies. In such economies the distribution of the individual state variables is endogenous. This part of the book also serves as an introduction to the modern theory of distribution economics. Applications include the dynamics of the income distribution over the business cycle or the overlapping generations model. In an accompanying home page to this book computer codes to all applications can be downloaded. Monthly Catalog of United States Government Publications United States, Superintendent of Documents, 1995 February issue includes Appendix entitled Directory of United States Government periodicals and subscription publications. September issue includes List of depository libraries. Ethiopia is an example of a country that undertook comprehensive reform of its core financial systems independent of the IMF and the World Bank and successfully transformed itself into one of the fastest growing economies in Africa. With Ethiopia's twelve year reform as its guiding case study this book presents new analytical frameworks to help governments develop better financial reforms. It shows in detail how four core financial systems: budgeting, accounting, planning and financial information systems can be reformed One of the principal findings presented is that governments must establish basic public financial administration before moving to more sophisticated public financial management Other key findings include the identification of four strategies of reform recognize improve change and sustain the centrality of ongoing learning to the process of reform and the importance of government ownership of reform This book will be of interest to researchers and policymakers concerned with public finance developmental economics and African studies
