Selles, 2011-04-07 Motivated by a desire for meaningful work and a life of adventure women college graduates in North America and Western Europe became student secretaries for the World Student Christian Federation WSCF In their role as student secretaries women worked to create student movements where none had existed to support fledgling movements and to embed themselves in movements that already existed Women thus played an important role in the first decades of the WSCF when the organization was involved with affiliating national Christian student groups across the globe Women secretaries extended to students around the world the fellowship and hospitality they had discovered during their times in higher education The simple fellowship led to creative programs of self help refugee relief and small group work that formed the basis for outreach in the post World War I era As the Federation adapted to a changing student culture the movement itself became more ecumenical and focused on social issues The resilience of the Federation can be attributed in large measure to the work of women secretaries in the field who created networks and friendships that persisted during peace and war The presence of student organizations such as the WSCF and others on university campuses today can be traced to the work of women secretaries in the early decades of the WSCF This book explores some of their stories The American Church History Series: A history of the Disciples of Christ, the Society of Friends, the United Brethren in Christ, and the Evangelical Association, by B.B. Tyler [and others] and Bibliography of American church history, by S.M. Jackson Philip Schaff, 1894 The American Church History
