Lab: Investigating Photosynthesis and Cellular Respiration

Background:

All organisms are dependent on a healthy carbon dioxide-oxygen balance. Photosynthesis and cellular respiration are key processes in maintaining this balance. Plants, through the process of photosynthesis, use energy absorbed from sunlight, water, and carbon dioxide to produce sugars and oxygen. Animals and plants, through the process of cellular respiration, use oxygen and sugars to produce carbon dioxide, water, and the energy needed to maintain life.

Purpose:

To determine how carbon dioxide cycles through a biological system by performing the "Carbon Transfer Through Snails and Elodea" lab activity.

Procedure:

1. Read through the background information and purpose. Create your own question for what you are investigating in this experiment.
 - a. Problem (in question form): How are photosynthesis and cellular respiration related?
