Salisbury,Nancy Sullivan,2008-12-30 The period we know as the Middle Ages roughly the years 400

1400 saw the formation of ideas and institutions that mark modern societies. Developments as disparate as the foundation of Islam and the emergence of the middle class occurred during this pivotal millennium. Although historical study of the Middle Ages has traditionally focused on Western Europe, modern historians recognize the complex global nature of this era. For all major world regions, this three-volume work offers in-depth essays on broad themes, short entries on specific topics, and carefully selected primary documents to help readers more fully understand this critically important period. Edited by Joyce Salisbury, who is general editor of the award-winning Greenwood Encyclopedia of Daily Life and written by Professor Salisbury and a series of prominent historians with regional expertise, Greenwood Encyclopedia of Global Medieval Life and Culture comprises three volumes covering the following areas of the globe: Volume 1: Europe and the Americas; Volume 2: Islam and Africa; Volume 3: Asia and Oceania. Each regional section comprises seven in-depth essays covering the following broad topics and concluding with bibliographies of important and current information resources: Historical Overview of the Region, Religion, Economy, The Arts, Society, Science and Technology, and Global Ties. The Global Ties essays trace the political, social, economic, religious, technological, or commercial connections that existed between the region under discussion and any other world regions during the Middle Ages. Each regional section also includes a series of brief entries covering people, events, developments, and concepts mentioned in the in-depth essays. Examples of entry topics include the following: Berbers, Emperor Harsha, Ethiopian Christianity, Flowering Warfare, Footbinding, Hildegard of Bingen, Jainism, Jihad, Maya Collapse, Neo-Confucianism, Romanesque, and Sharia. A series of sidebars in each section will provide lists, graphs, charts, and other useful data relating to the region. Each section will also be illustrated and will include a selection of interesting primary documents that further illustrate the main themes addressed in the in-depth essays. Cross-references within the sections and a detailed subject index will also help readers access information in the essays and short entries.

How They Lived James Ciment, 2015-12-14. Ideal for history majors, nonhistory majors taking history courses, as well as general readers, this book provides not only the primary documents and artifacts of ordinary people in history but also annotations that help the reader put them into context and grasp their deeper meaning. This two-volume work explores daily life across human history through primary sources, making use of this primary source material as well as detailed analysis to help readers understand and use these sources as evidence of how life used to be. The diverse selection of sources includes artifacts, inscriptions, histories, letters, and first-hand accounts ranging from ancient times to the emergence of modern Europe to the present day. This set makes use of an innovative layout: facing pages contain a primary source selection on the left side with the introduction and analysis on the right side. This facing pages layout allows readers to access the text information and the primary source itself without any distracting page turning Unlike most other books on history that relay key momentous events in history and tales regarding kings and generals aristocrats and the highly educated How They Lived An Annotated Tour of Daily Life through History in Primary Sources includes significant coverage of ordinary people and interesting information about everyday life at all levels of society As a result this collection helps close the gap in what students of history are typically exposed to through its presentation of both written documents and images of artifacts

Algorithms, Monks, And Merchants: Computing In Everyday Life In The Middle Ages Giorgio Ausiello, 2025-02-25 This book explores the tight relationship that existed between application needs and computational problem solving methods during the Middle Ages particularly the period between the 9th and 15th centuries It was a time of great cultural and economic evolution starting with the blooming phase of Arab science and continuing with the acquisition of Hindu Arabic computation methods based on the decimal positional number system in Western Europe The aim is to show by means of suitable examples how in the Middle Ages mathematics and computation were tightly related to the solution of everyday life problems These ranges from religious problems like computing the date of Easter to land measurement and financial computations as well as handling various volumes and managing agricultural resources In particular during the late medieval centuries when the economy saw a substantial upswing merchants activity required strong computational skills to solve a great variety of problems It is such need that led to the creation of the so called abacus schools that the sons of merchants primarily Italians but also from other European regions attended during their boyhood to learn computing techniques

A Medieval Life Graham Fairclough, 2025-04-17 Offers a biographical and archaeological exploration of William de Felton builder of Edlingham Castle A Medieval Life William de Felton and Edlingham Castle 1260 1327 is a biography of a little known man living in late thirteenth and early fourteenth century Britain William s precise birth and death dates are unrecorded his place of origin has for a long time been unclear and his parentage is still uncertain Although somewhat wealthy and privileged William does not represent either the high aristocracy or the great and the good of his time and a central theme of this book is how to write a biography of someone relatively anonymous in the Middle Ages There are plenty of books about kings queens and battles this book offers a different perspective Its origin lies in archaeological excavations between 1978 and 1982 at Edlingham Northumberland The first house here which grew to be called a castle was built in the years around 1300 It was abandoned before the 1660s after less than four centuries of habitation and nearly three centuries before it was uncovered by excavation This book is not an excavation report however nor an architectural survey but an attempt to excavate the buried and concealed life of the castle s founder and to understand the unusual building he created It is a biographical approach to history framed by archaeological and landscape perspectives the biography of one man which illuminates the lives of those around him and serves as a biography of a place and landscape William de Felton s story can be told because he was unexpectedly well documented His career as a middle ranking servant in the royal households of Edward I and Edward II combined with the bureaucratic habits of the king's clerks has bequeathed to historians two hundred documents that mention him. These documents are often individually banal but taken together and with other documentary evidence for William's family, neighbours, friends and colleagues they enable a reconstruction of his life. They show us William as husband and father, as a landowner and as a traveller moving with the king's armies and household from his native Shropshire widely around England into Wales, France, Flanders and Scotland, perhaps slightly contrary to the idea that medieval people travelled little. William began his career as an usher in the king's bedchamber and for many years was a soldier during Edward I's 'forever wars', the early attempt to create by force a single nation on the British islands. He was an administrator or governor of occupied territories in Wales and Scotland and later a local official in his adopted Northumberland. He was also a builder, notably for the king in Gascony and other places but also in his own right at Edlingham Castle, the centre piece of this book, now an English Heritage public property.
