Prostitution Scandals In China Prostitution Scandals In China:

Prostitution Scandals in China Elaine Jeffreys, 2012-06-14 Prostitution Scandals in China presents an examination of media coverage of prostitution related scandals in contemporary China. It demonstrates that the subject of prostitution is not only widely debated but also that these public discussions have ramifications for some of the key social, legal and political issues affecting citizens of the PRC. Further, this book shows how these public discussions impact on issues as diverse as sexual exploitation, civil rights, government corruption, child and youth protection, policing abuses and public health. In this book, Elaine Jeffreys highlights China's changing sexual behaviours in the context of rapid social and economic change. Her work points to changes in the nature of the PRC's prostitution controls flowing from media exposure of policing and other abuses. It also illustrates the emergence of new and legally based conceptions of rightful citizenship in China today such as children's rights, the right to privacy, work, sex and health, and the rights of citizens to claim legal redress for losses and injuries experienced as the result of unlawful acts by state personnel. Prostitution Scandals in China will be of great interest to students and scholars across a range of diverse fields including Chinese culture and society, gender studies and media and communication studies.

NGO Governance and Management in China Reza Hasmath, Jennifer Y. J. Hsu, 2015-07-16 As China becomes increasingly integrated into the global system, there will be continuing pressure to acknowledge and engage with non-governmental organizations (NGOs). Suffice to say without a clear understanding of the state's interaction with NGOs and vice versa, any political, economic and social analysis of China will be incomplete. This book provides an urgent insight into contemporary state-NGO relations. It brings together the most recent research covering three broad themes: namely, the conceptualizations and subsequent functions of NGOs; state-NGO engagement; and NGOs as a mediator between state and society in contemporary China. The book provides a future glimpse into the challenges of state

NGO interactions in China's rapidly developing regions which will aid NGOs strategic planning in both the short and long term. In addition, it allows a measure of predictability in our assessment of Chinese NGOs' behaviour, notably when they eventually move their areas of operation from the domestic sphere to an international one. The salient themes, concepts, theories and practice discussed in this book will be of acute interest to students, scholars and practitioners in development studies, public administration and Chinese and Asian politics. Reza Hasmath is a Lecturer in Chinese Politics at the University of Oxford, UK, and an Associate Professor in Political Science at the University of Alberta, Canada. His research looks at state-society relationships, the labour market, experiences of ethnic minorities and development theories and practices. Jennifer Y. J. Hsu is an Assistant Professor in Political Science at the University of Alberta, Canada. Her recent publications include a co-authored book HIV/AIDS in China: The Economic and Social Determinants (Routledge, 2011) and a co-edited book The Chinese Corporatist State: Adaption, Survival and Resistance (Routledge, 2012).

Dams, Migration and Authoritarianism in China

Sabrina Habich, 2015-12-22. Past studies on the Chinese state point towards the inherent adaptability, effectiveness and overall stability of authoritarian rule in China. The key question addressed here is how this adaptive capacity plays out at the local level in China, clarifying the extent to which local state actors are able to shape local processes of policy implementation. This book studies the evolution of dam-induced resettlement policy in China based on extensive fieldwork conducted in Yunnan province. It shows that local governments at the lowest administrative levels are caught in a double bind, facing strong top-down pressures in the important policy field of hydropower development while simultaneously having to handle growing social pressure from local communities affected by resettlement policies. In doing so, the book questions the widespread assumption that the observed longevity and resilience of China's authoritarian regime is to a large extent due to the high degree of flexibility that has been granted to local governments in the course of the reform period. The research extends beyond previous analyses of policy implementation by focusing on the state-society interface and the ways in which they interact, as well as by examining what happens when policy implementation is interrupted. Analysing the application of resettlement policies in contemporary China, with a focus on the multiple constraints that Chinese local states face, this book will be of interest to students and scholars of Political Science, Chinese Studies and Sociology.

China's Housing Middle Class

Beibei Tang, 2017-10-25. Home ownership plays a significant role in locating the middle class in most western societies associated with market consumerism democracy and people like us the significant features of the middle class for any society In China private home ownership was not the norm from 1949 when the Chinese Communist Party took power until the 1990s In the past three decades however there has been a fast growing housing consumption and private homeowners have become the most significantly changing aspect of Chinese urban life In particular the rise of gated communities has become a predominant feature of the urban landscape Similar to their western counterparts the gated communities in China exemplify high status symbols with enclosed and restricted residential areas exclusive community parks and recreational facilities and professional management and security services But different from western societies where gated communities usually represent luxurious lifestyles only limited to a small group of people in urban China gated communities have become one major form of supply in the housing market and one of the most popular and desirable choices for homebuyers Private home ownership and residency in gated communities altogether characterize the most significant aspect of comfort living and distinct lifestyles of China's new middle classes who have successfully got ahead in the socialist market economy This book examines the formation of China's housing middle class It develops a theoretical argument about and provides empirical evidence of the heterogeneity of China's new middle class which underlines the relations between the state market and life chances under a socialist market economy As such it will be of huge interest to students and scholars of Chinese society sociology and politics

Rural Policy Implementation in Contemporary China Anna Ahlers, 2014-01-10

At the turn of the millennium the disparities between rural and urban livelihoods underdevelopment and administrative shortcomings in the Chinese countryside were increasingly seen as posing a manifest threat to social harmony and economic and political stability At that time the term three rural problems sannong wenti was coined which defined the main issues of rural life that needed to be targeted by government action agriculture nongye villages nongcun and farmers nongmin In turn with the launch of the 11th Five Year Plan in 2006 a pledge was made to shift the focus of developmental efforts to the long neglected countryside which is still home to half of the Chinese population This book presents an analysis of adaptive local policy implementation in China in the context of the Building of a New Socialist Countryside BNSC policy framework Based on intensive field work in four counties in Fujian Jiangxi Shaanxi and Zhejiang Provinces between 2008 and 2011 it offers detailed analyses of the form and impact of county governments strategic agency at certain stages and within certain fields of the implementation process for example the design of local BNSC programs the steering of project funding implementation and evaluation the establishment of model villages and the management of public participation Further this study illustrates that BNSC is far more than the empty slogan described by many observers when it was launched in 2005 2006 Instead it has already brought about considerable shifts in terms of the process and outcomes of rural policy implementation Altogether the results of this research challenge existing paradigms by showing how against the background of contemporary approaches to rural development and recent reforms initiated by the central state local bureaucracies strategic agency can actually push forward effective albeit not necessarily optimal policy implementation to some extent which serves the interests of central authorities local implementors and rural residents By tying into the larger debates on China's state capacity and authoritarian adaptability this book enriches our understanding of the inner workings of the Chinese political system As such it will prove invaluable to students and scholars of Chinese politics public policy and development studies more generally

Elites and Governance in China Xiaowei Zang, Chien-wen Kou, 2013-09-13 This book reveals the complex relationship between elite perceptions and behaviour and governance in China It moves away from existing scholarship by focusing on functionaries grass roots elites leading intellectuals and opinion makers in China and by looking beyond the top leadership makes a significant contribution to our understanding of shared governance and broadened political participation in China The chapters in this collection explore the elites role as opinion makers technical experts producers of knowledge and executives or managers and pose a number of questions the answers to which are crucial to understanding future political and economic development in China What are elite perceptions of governance inequality and justice what do the elites mean by good governance what is the influence of non Chinese Communist Party elites in policy making and implementation in China how have they exerted their influence in the PRC and influenced its direction of future development and what have grass roots elites contributed to governance in local communities Providing a keen insight into the role elites have played in governing China since 1978 this book is a pioneering effort to bring together elite studies and governance studies As such it will be highly relevant for policy makers within international organizations governments and NGOs outside China as well as appealing to scholars and students interested in Chinese politics and governance

Routledge Handbook of Sexuality Studies in East Asia Mark McLelland, Vera Mackie, 2014-09-15 This collection brings together cutting edge work by established and emerging scholars focusing on key societies in the East Asian region China Taiwan Hong Kong Japan North and South Korea Mongolia and Vietnam This scope enables the collection to reflect on the nature of the transformations in constructions of sexuality in highly developed developing and emerging societies and economies Both Japan and China have established traditions of sexuality studies reflecting longstanding indigenous understandings of sex as well as more recent developments which interface with Euro American medical and psychological understandings Authors reflect upon the complex colonial and economic interactions and cultural flows which have affected the East Asian region over the last two centuries They trace local flows of ideas instead of defaulting to Euro American paradigms for sexuality studies Through looking at regional and global exchanges of ideas about sexuality this volume adds considerably to our understanding of the East Asian region and contributes to wider discussions of social transformation modernisation and globalisation It will be essential reading in undergraduate and graduate programs in sexuality studies gender studies women's studies and masculinity studies as well as in anthropology sociology history cultural studies area studies and health sciences
