Not Helpless The Street Homeless And Their Helpers:

Homeless Not Hopeless Edna Molina-Jackson, 2008-08-28 The importance of moving toward a national policy to end homelessness is crucial In this striking examination of the roles that homeless people and the U S government play in causing and curtailing the escalating phenomena of homelessness Edna Molina Jackson asserts that there is a great need to alter the socio economic structures that generate extreme and entrenched forms of poverty that lead to homelessness Homeless Not Hopeless explores the role social networks play in the daily survival of homeless Latino and African American men Using a qualitative research design author Molina Jackson observes how these men initiate participate in and maintain social networks and how these networks function The findings support a more empowering view of homeless men as active rational and competent actors engaged in negotiating their social world Members rely on social networks composed of a hierarchy of casual and intimate affiliations The networks of Americanized Latinos and African Americans facilitate their integration into a subculture of street life while those of recent immigrant Latinos revolve around their struggles to find work avoid deportation and enlist the support of paisanos

The Well-Being Project Jean Campbell, Ron Schraiber, In 1987 a groundbreaking survey called The Well Being Project was conducted by the California Network of Mental Health Clients under contract to the Office of Prevention of the California Department of Mental Health to explore what factors promote or deter the well being of those diagnosed labeled as mentally ill Initially it had been assumed that the analysis of the survey data as well as the final written report would be awarded to a university or other professional research group Much to the surprise of some and in the spirit of the disability rights movement rallying cry of nothing about us without us the successful proposal was written by mental health client researchers Jean Campbell and Ron Schraiber on behalf of the California Network of Mental Health Clients The study became known as The Well Being Project Mental Health Clients Speak for Themselves and was published in 1989 additionally an award winning documentary People Say I m Crazy based on the study s findings was produced as well as a compendium book to the video with the same title

Urban Ecclesiology Pascal D. Bazzell, 2015-05-21 Pascal D Bazzell brings the marginal ecclesiology of a Filipino ecclesial community facing homelessness FECH into contemporary ecclesiological conversation in order to deepen the ecumenical understanding of today s ecclesial reality He contributes relevant data to support a theory of an ecclesial oriented paradigm that fosters ecclesial communities within homeless populations There is an extensive dialogue occurring between ecclesiologies church planting theories or urban missions and the urban poor Yet the situation with the homeless population is almost entirely overlooked The majority of urban mission textbooks do not acknowledge an ecclesial oriented state of being and suggest that the street level environment is a place where no discipleship can occur and no church should exist By presenting the FECH s case study

Bazzell emphasizes that it is possible to live on the streets and to grow in the faith of God as an ecclesial community. To be able to describe the FECH's ecclesial narrative, Bazzell develops a local ecclesiological methodology that aims to bridge the gap between more traditional systematic and theoretical ideal ecclesiology and practical oriented ecclesiology e.g. congregational studies in order to hold together theological and social understandings of the church in its local reality. He articulates a theological framework for the FECH to reflect on who they are, the essence of identity studies, who they are in relationship to God, the essence of theological studies, and what that means for believers in that community as they relate to God and to each other in ways that are true to who they are and to who God intends them to be, the essence of ecclesial studies. The research provides a seldom heard empirical tour into the FECH's social world and communal identity. The theological findings from the FECH's hermeneutical work on the Gospel of Mark reveal an understanding of church being developed as gathering around Jesus that creates a space for God's presence to be embodied in their ordinary relationships and activities and to invite others to participate in that gathering. Moreover, it addresses ecclesial issues of the supernatural world, honor/shame values, and further develops the neglected image of the familia Dei in classical ecclesiology that encapsulates well the FECH's nature, mission, and place.

Covering a wide range of topics from youth homelessness to end of life care, the authors strive to outline policy and practice recommendations to respond to the ongoing public health crisis. This book is divided into three distinct but complimentary sections. In the first section, contributors explore how homelessness affects the health of particular homeless populations, focusing on the experiences of homeless youth, immigrants, refugees, and people of Aboriginal ancestry. In the second section, contributors investigate how housing and public health policy, as well as programmatic responses, can address various health challenges, including severe mental illness and HIV/AIDS. In the final section, contributors highlight innovative Canadian interventions that have shown great promise in the field. Together, they form a comprehensive survey of an all too important topic and serve as a blueprint for action. Homelessness Health in Canada explores for the first time the social structural and environmental factors that shape the health of homeless persons in Canada.
