

THE CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE OF NORTHERN NIGERIA: THE FIRST FIVE YEARS

Five years have now passed since the Criminal Procedure Code of Northern Nigeria came into force and, having regard to the interest and controversy which it aroused, it may be that a review of its working during this initial period may be of interest, particularly to those who remember the article by Mr. Justin Price in the Modern Law Review of 1961, which gave rise to subsequent replies and correspondence.¹ It is satisfactory to be able to report that the fears expressed by Mr. Justin Price in his article and by others in a less public and controversial manner have proved to be without foundation. Without foundation, that is to say, unless these fears merely related to change itself, based upon a belief that the English criminal law and procedure and any other directly descended from it are sacrosanct.

For the sake of completeness it may not be out of place to commence this article by reminding readers of the reasons for the introduction of new legislation in 1960. Prior to September 30, 1960, the criminal law and procedure applicable in Northern Nigeria, except in a handful of High and magistrates' courts, was native law and custom, which included Moslem law, and this was applied in over 700 native courts. These courts consisted of alkali courts (in the predominantly Moslem areas), conciliar courts and non-Moslem courts consisting of a President sitting with assessors. These courts varied greatly in powers and jurisdiction (Grade A Moslem courts having even capital powers) and in efficiency and competence. They dealt with the vast majority of criminal work in the Region, and some, though not all, were subject to a right of appeal to the Regional High Court, the Federal Supreme Court (the final court of appeal within the Federation) and the Privy Council.

The position therefore prior to October 1, 1960, was that the law of criminal procedure in the High and magistrates' courts throughout the Federation was that established by the Criminal Procedure Ordinance² whilst criminal procedure in the native courts of Northern Nigeria was regulated by native law and custom which was generally unwritten. It was however felt at the time of independence (October 1, 1960) that there should be in existence in the Ethiopian Criminal Procedure Stanley Z. Fisher, 1969 The International Criminal Court and Nigeria Muiyiwa Adigun, 2017-12-14 If Nigeria fails to prosecute the crimes recognised under the Rome Statute then the International Criminal Court ICC will intervene The ICC is only expected to complement the criminal justice system in Nigeria and is not a court of first instance but one of last resort This is what is known as the principle of complementarity Before the ICC can step in it must make a finding of unwillingness or inability on the part of Nigeria It is only after this finding is made that the ICC can take over the prosecution of the crimes recognised under the Statute from Nigeria This book examines the criminal justice process in Nigeria and discovers that the justice system is latent with the requirements of unwillingness and inability The requirements which serve as tests for assessment are as they are laid down by the Rome Statute and interpreted by the ICC This book offers recommendations as to what Nigeria must do in order to avoid the ICC intervention by reversing those parameters that give rise to unwillingness and inability The International Criminal Court and Nigeria Implementing the Complementarity Principle of the Rome Statute offers a contribution to the advancement of international law and will be of practical use to African countries It aims to sensitise policy makers in different African countries in respect of policy options open to them to close impunity gap in their respective countries This volume addresses the topics with regard to international criminal law and comparative public law and will be of interest to researchers academics organizations and students in the fields of international law governance and comparative criminal justice
