Approximate Methods in Structural Seismic Design A. Scarlat, 1995-12-28 This book examines the recent developments in computerized structural analysis and finite element analysis to re appraise existing approximate techniques and to define their scope and limits more accurately The book proposes new techniques and provides many numerical examples and comparisons with accurate methods Geochemical Investigations in Earth and Space Sciences R.J. Hill, J. Leventhal, Z. Aizenshtat, M.J. Baedeker, G. Claypool, R. Eganhouse, M. Goldhaber, K. Peters, 2004-06-16 This volume is the product of a technical session organized for the 2002 Geological Society of America Annual Meeting in recognition of Isaac Kaplan's many contributions to various fields of geochemistry. As Kaplan enters his sixth decade of scientific investigation, it is fair to say that his work has touched or influenced innumerable scientists either directly or indirectly. Readers of this volume are presented with a collection of 29 papers written by former students, post-doctoral researchers, friends, and colleagues from countries all over the world including Sweden, Japan, Taiwan, New Zealand, Australia, Israel, and the United States, from the fields of stable isotope, forensic, environmental, and petroleum geochemistry, atmospheric chemistry, and cosmochemistry. The stable isotope section includes papers investigating climate change, diagenesis, recent sediment, and petroleum geochemistry and cosmochemistry problems. The forensic and environmental geochemistry section includes a variety of papers ranging from trace metals in soils to atmospheric CO₂ projections. The petroleum geochemistry section includes both basic research and applied geochemistry papers. The ancient and recent sediments section contains papers ranging from carbon flux in modern sediments to Precambrian microfossils. All of the articles together cover a broad range of geochemical studies and represent the diverse and distinguished career of Isaac Kaplan. Participatory Media in Environmental Communication Usha Sundar Harris, 2018-09-13 Participatory Media in Environmental Communication brings together stories of communities in the Pacific islands, a region that is severely affected by the impacts of climate change. Despite living on the margins of the digital revolution, these island communities have used media and communication to create awareness of and find solutions to environmental challenges. By telling their stories in their own way, ordinary people are able to communicate compelling accounts of how different but interrelated environmental, political, and economic issues converge and impact at a local level. This book fills a significant gap in our understanding of how participatory media is used as a dialogic tool to raise awareness and facilitate discussion of environmental issues that are now critical. It includes a section on pedagogy and practice, the undergirding principles, the tools, the methods. The book offers a framework for Participatory Environmental Communication that weaves three widely used concepts—diversity, network, and agency—into a cohesive underlying system to bring scholars, practitioners, and diverse communities together in a dialogue about pressing environmental issues. This book is a valuable resource for researchers and students in communication and media studies, environmental communication, cultural studies, and environmental sciences, as well as practitioners, policy makers, and environmental activists.
