

3. Valve stem end
Inspect end of valve stem. If the end appears to be "mushroomed" or has a larger diameter than the rest of the stem, the valve, valve guide, and oil seal should be replaced.
4. Turn valve on a "V" block and measure the amount of stem runout with a dial gauge. If it exceeds the maximum limit, replace the valve.

Maximum Valve Stem Runout:
0.03 mm (0.0012 in)

5. Valve guide and valve oil seal replacement
If oil leaks into the cylinder through a valve due to a worn valve guide, or if a valve is replaced, the valve guide should also be replaced.

NOTE:

The valve oil seal should be replaced whenever a valve is removed or replaced.

- a. Measure valve guide inside diameter with a small bore gauge. If it exceeds the limit, replace with an oversize valve guide.

Guide diameter (I.D.):
Limit: 7.10 mm (0.280 in)

- b. To ease guide removal and reinstallation, and to maintain the correct interference fit, heat the head to 100°C (212°F). Use an oven to avoid any possibility of head warpage due to uneven heating.

- c. Use the appropriate shouldered punch (special tool) to drive the old guide out and drive the new guide in.

NOTE:

When a valve guide is replaced, the O-ring should also be replaced.

1. Valve guide remover

2. Valve guide installer

- d. After installing the valve guide, use the 7 mm (0.28 in) reamer (special tool) to obtain the proper valve guide to valve stem clearance.

- e. After installing the valve guide in the cylinder head, the valve seat must be recut. The valve should be lapped to the new seat.
6. Grinding the Valve Seat
 - a. The valve seat is subject to severe wear. Whenever the valve is replaced or the valve face is re-surfaced (see caution) the valve seat should be re-surfaced at a 45° angle. If a new valve guide has been installed the valve seat must be recut to guarantee complete sealing between the valve face and seat.
