Pyramids and Literature in Ancient Egypt Asher Benowitz, DTTV Publications, Pyramids have been around for thousands of years but we still don't know exactly how they were built The oldest pyramids are found at Giza and Saqqara The Great Pyramid at Giza is one of the Seven Wonders of the World and was built during the fourth dynasty 2575-2150 BC During this time there was also an increase in writing literature and artisanship The Westcar Papyrus tells us of three royal women who lived during the 4th dynasty Khufu's mother Henutsen his wife Hetepheres I and her sister Meresankh II The latter was also his daughter in law because she married his son Khafre ruled 2558-2532 BC She may have been buried inside this pyramid when she died at age 26 The first hieroglyphic text was written on papyrus in about 3100 BC It is from a chapter from The Book Of Journey To Heaven called book 6 which describes how Ra travels with Thoth as they visit each nome district throughout Egypt during a period called the Festival Of Night where they praise Osiris while traveling through space towards his underworld kingdom every year at midnight between June 21st-22nd July 21st-22nd when Orion rises as Sirius sets below it just before dawn on these days known later as Dog Days because dogs often suffer heat exhaustion then too due to lack of moisture caused by intense sunlight reflecting off asphalt surfaces like sidewalks or blacktop parking lots heating up too much due to all that reflected energy bouncing back into our faces which makes us sweat which causes dehydration if we don't drink enough water In the House of Heqanakht M. Victoria Almansa-Villatoro, Silvia Štubňová Nigrelli, Mark Lehner, 2022-11-28 In the House of Heqanakht Text and Context in Ancient Egypt gathers Egyptological articles in honor of James P. Allen. Charles Edwin Wilbour Professor of Egyptology at Brown University, Professor Allen's contribution to our current understanding of the ancient Egyptian language, religion, society, and history is immeasurable and has earned him the respect of generations of scholars. In accordance with Professor Allen's own academic prolificacy, the present volume represents an assemblage of studies that range among different methodologies, objects of study, and time periods. The contributors specifically focus on the interconnectedness of text and context in ancient Egypt, exploring how a symbiosis of linguistics, philology, archaeology, and history can help us reconstruct a more accurate picture of ancient Egypt and its people. The Divine Knowledge of Egypt Norah Romney, Egypt was considered by ancient peoples to be the epitome of Knowledge. Their mysterious Nile country had a knowledge system much more developed than any in their native ability, with which Egyptian religion was so strongly associated, therefore it seemed to savor Knowledge practices to the foreigner. Imagine omitting the Pyramid Knowledge papyri. For a proper understanding of the Egyptian Pyramids and Temple Buildings, it is wiser to derive our information from the original native sources, since we have almost no knowledge of Egyptian Knowledge. Most of what Egyptologists have written about Egyptian Knowledge assumes that it is merely a degraded form of religion or its foundation. Independent archaeologists have produced astonishing results. Ancient Knowledge, according to Stacy Dalton, was the basis for belief. Those seeking favor from a god could only succeed by laying hands on the deity, and this could only be accomplished through a specific set of rituals, prayers, and chants revealed by God, which obliged him to fulfill his duties. Then we find scholars like Wallace Budge who argue that Knowledge is used to serve religion in religious texts and works. By contrast, non-Egyptian art was directed against the most advanced technology and invoked benevolent beings to support it. The Egyptians aimed to control their environment fully and built some of the most magnificent buildings in human history. For a moment, let's consider the source of Knowledge. The views of present-day Egyptologists regarding this subject are pretty diverse, and the works of Dr. Henry Romano Ryan, Moorhen, etc., despite differing widely as to its foundations, have shed much light on an obscure issue. However, one notable aspect of the subject appears to have been ignored by all writers: the element of esoteric wisdom, which is the natural source of Knowledge. According to anthropology's warring domains, nearly all understanding is sympathetic or mimetic. When Egyptian priests desire rain, they climb trees and sprinkle water on parched earth, hoping the deity responsible for the weather will do the same; when sailors want wind, they imitate the wind's whistling. Despite being universal, this system does not contain the Knowledge element, according to our conclusions.
